Mussolini Will Look—See For Each 180 Years Trouble? Do Something Short Skirts, High Necks

By Arthur Brisbane

To show the League of Nations and the Emperor of "Negus" of Ethiopia that he is in earnest, Mussolini, in a big plane, will fly himself from Rome to the edge of Ethiopian territory. Imagine the Ethiopians' surprise, when they see the head of a great nation actually risk himself in the air, flying his own plane.

When Gustavus Adolphus, "Lion of the North," greatest Scandinavian fighter, rode batting at the head of his troops, the psychological effect was great. He was killed fighting with his troops, a fact much to be regretted, and after a cannon ball blew off the head of Charles the Twelfth later, that was the end of Scandinavian military glory.

Imagine the effect on Italian soldiers when their Duce, roaring through the air, lands his own plane among them. Mussolini's favorite pilot recently made the flight from the Abyssinian border to Rome in eleven hours. Fresh supplies of flying machines, poison gas and explosives will not take long on the road.

Mussolini's plane travels 240 miles an hour, carries two thousand pounds of bombs, its nose is "equipped with a powerful machine gun." How can you talk "compromise" to a man like Mussolini?

Blanche Dunkel, whose daughter died, fell in love with her son-in-law, Ervin Lang. For a modest consideration, Mrs. Evelyn Smith, former "burlesque lady," agreed to dispose of Lang, to prevent his remarrying. Both ladies made the unfortunate man drunk, the mother-in-law departed, the burlesque lady gave him ether, strangled him, cut off, his legs, and never got the $500 promised by the mother-in-law.

All that is common enough in our civilization, but novel is the sentence to one hundred and eighty years in the penitentiary for each of the ladies. The 180 years' sentence is supposed to make certain that the women will stay at least sixty years in jail. But you never can tell what a parole board will do. And what, do you think will happen in 60 years? Some baby not yet born will be President, all but the young will be gone. Life is kaleidoscopic.

If you have trouble, do something. New York had trouble with racketeers and assorted criminals. One announced his return to town; Mayor La Guardia said, not too kindly, "If you are wise, you will keep away." That one did keep away. Others, the "biggest shots" of New York's criminals, have scattered in all directions, they are NOT in New York.

An able young lawyer named Dewey, who believes that jail and the electric chair are cures for crime, is investigating New York racketeering. New York's police commissioner, Valentine, happens to be, like the mayor, an honest man. A bad combination for criminals.

Paris reports "shorter skirts and higher neck lines." What you gain at one end you lose at the other. One dressmaker has pockets fastened with "zippers" that no thief can open. They come too late for the United States.

"Leopard skin capes trimmed with ostrich feathers for evening," represent an Ethiopian idea, doubtless.

Colonel Frank B. Shutts, who owns the Miami Herald and prints this column on the front page of it every day, on his way through New York, remarks, "Building permits in Miami and Miami Beach, for the first seven months this year, gained more than 79 per cent over the same period last year. We do not like the word 'boom,' but we have that word in Miami. It is a healthy 'boom.' Only New York, Los Angeles, Detroit and Boston, with populations far in excess of metropolitan Miami, equal that building figure."

It is always pleasant to know that somebody, somewhere, is cheerful.

Government would spend three hundred and twenty million dollars in New York, and General Hugh S. Johnson, WPA administrator, has charge of the job. Wages are fixed by law, but union labor says, "You can't do that to us. You must pay the highest union scale wages." And union labor strikes.

The general says, "Just too bad for those that strike," and Mayor La Guardia says, "Those that do not want work need not work."

Colonel Hubert Fauntleroy Julian, daring air pilot from Harlem, N. Y., landed in Addis Ababa, instantly got into a fight with an Ethiopian pilot, and is locked up in the jail. The Ethiopian said Julian from Harlem could do almost anything "but fly," and Julian gave a little-like imitation of Joe Louis.

Smoke Clouds Enshroud Waterfront as Firemen Battle Four-Alarm Wharf Warehouse Blaze

From a vantage point high in the Customs house tower, Boston Evening American Staff Photographer Eddie Stephan made this remarkable picture showing smoke clouds enshrouding the Boston waterfront as firemen battle a spectacular four alarm blaze in the huge oil and coal plant of the Quincy Market Cold Storage and Warehouse company on Eastern avenue wharf. In the large square building silhouetted against the smoke are located the Quincy Market company's business offices. The flames are raging in the harbor-side warehouses to the rear, halting ferries and tying up Atlantic avenue traffic. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

ONE FIREMAN FALLS 55 FT., SCORES IN DANGER

Boston firemen battled the most spectacular waterfront blaze in years today when four alarms were sounded as flames swept a huge unused wool warehouse of the Quincy Market Cold Storage & Warehouse Company on the Eastern avenue side of T wharf.

At least one fireman, Ladderman Albert Mitchell, was seriously hurt. He fell 55 feet from a ladder at the height of the fire.

Mitchell, whose home is at 23 Cook terrace, Mattapan, is dying at Haymarket relief station from a fractured spine and fractured pelvis.

Others were overcome by the heavy smoke that threw a pall over the Atlantic avenue side of the harbor and attracted thousands to the scene.

LOSS $40,000

Damage was estimated at $40,000.

The fire, sweeping a six-story, 200-foot building of wood and corrugated iron sheathing, in the rear of 178 Atlantic avenue, endangered passengers waiting in the South Ferry slip, and four prisoners and a guard in the city penal pen on the wharf.

There was no ferry in the slip at the time and one, en route across the harbor, was signalled to return to the East Boston side.

The service was suspended and commuters fled the ferry waiting room as the heat there became intense.

WALL STOPS FLAMES

Former City Councillor Michael J. Mahoney, now attached to the penal department, had four prisoners in the city yard awaiting the arrival of the Deer Island boat, George A. Hibbard.

The prisoners were rescued from the danger spot by police from Station 1 and removed to the station. The boat, arriving while firemen battled the blaze, anchored in midchannel off the wharf.

ERA JOBS SAFE, STRIKE OFF

Developments in WPA strike threats and ERA condition today were:

Money promised by Washington saves 112,000 in Massachusetts from losing ERA jobs.

Governor Curley at Springfield labor convention says prevailing wage scales will be maintained under WPA. Strike threat by labor leaders averted.

New York WPA authorities claim only 700 men responded to strike call. Strike leaders claim between 10,000 and 15,000 responded.

Philadelphia navy yard strike declared a failure by naval officials. All men at work they said. Small picket line of unemployed set up.

American Federation of Labor officials in Atlantic City meet to consider pay problem.

Strikes probable in Chicago, Kansas City, San Francisco, Cleveland and Seattle.

Cleveland authorities take steps to prevent strike from delaying start of WPA projects in that city next week.

BANDITS BIND 2 IN CAMBRIDGE

Two employes of a Main street (Cambridge) wholesale confectionery store were bound and gagged, and one of them was knocked unconscious, today, by two armed gunmen, whose holdup plans were thwarted.

Harry Cline, 58, of Henry street, Cambridge, and Jack Leftin, 38, of Mount Vernon street, Malden, were in the store when the men entered.

Growling a command to put their hands up, the leader of the gunmen forced both employes into the back room. They were bound, and gagged with tape.

The gunmen then began ransacking the store for money.

While the ransacking was going on, Cline managed to free his mouth from the binding tape and shouted for help. One of the gunmen came back and struck him with a revolver butt, knocking him unconscious.

The search for loot was then continued, but there was nothing in the store but checks, which the holdup men didn't take.

When the gunmen left, Leftin freed himself, staggered to the door and summoned help.

UNIONS' PWA STRIKE THREAT AVERTED BY CURLEY PLEDGE

Massachusetts today obtained $500,000 additional ERA funds for August expenditure, and saved the jobs of thousands of ERA workers.

The grant was made from Washington in answer to the appeal of State Administrator Arthur G. Rotch.

Rotch announced that the sum obtained would be sufficient to maintain the 112,000 workers on ERA payrolls through August with a minimum of "staggering."

A majority of the projects abandoned yesterday in Quincy, Lynn, Lowell, Somerville and other cities will be immediately resumed and the several thousand workers who were laid off will be rehired.

The additional grant will lift a tremendous burden from municipal welfare agencies which had already begun to feel the result of the shortage in federal funds.

With the $500,000 extra, the state will spend $7,200,000 in ERA money this month. To avoid any staggering of workers $800,000 more would be needed, but Rotch said the present situation, in view of the additional funds, is no different than it has been during every other five-payday month.

"Staggered" employes may be absorbed on 12 PWA projects totaling $921,000.

Curley Says WPA To Maintain Pay

Rates of wages for all building construction will be maintained under the WPA, Governor Curley told the Federation of Labor convention at Springfield.

The action, the governor said, is intended to forestall a threatened strike by workers September 1, similar to the strike in New York.

Assurance was also given by Curley that prevailing wage rates would be paid on road construction projects.

"I will go to Washington next week," the governor said, "to further plans for maintenance of union rates of pay on all WPA work."

Meanwhile labor leaders of the A. F. of L. met at Atlantic City to discuss the pay problem.

There, President William Green of the Federation declared that other strikes are probable in Chicago, Kansas City, Cleveland, San Francisco and Seattle.

CALLS IT PAY CUT

An example of the wages proposed under the WPA as compared with the wages paid under the works division which is to be superseded by the WPA follows:

Under the old rates, a skilled worker was allowed to work only five eight-hour days at $1.50 an hour, amounting to $60 a month.

Under the new system, such a worker would be paid $63.50 a month for 15 eight-hour days, or at the rate of 78 cents an hour.

It is claimed by labor leaders that the WPA scale cuts the pay for actual time worked almost in half.

The building trades unions in Massachusetts blazed the way for a strike here and the full convention at Springfield endorsed the stand.

Showdown is apt to be on September 1, or even sooner, when the WPA replaces the PWA and the new wage scales go into effect.

Under PWA at present, the prevailing wage for each section is paid.

CURLEY LAUDS LABOR AIMS

Governor Curley, who addressed the Springfield convention, gave the labor men great praise for their general aims, but did not refer to the prevailing wage situation.

In his address the governor minimized the election of Judge Charles F. Risk, Republican, to Congress from Rhode Island and said that President Roosevelt and his party have a year and a half before the next national election to "correct the evils" of the administration.

Cities Shirk Relief Duties, Hopkins Avers

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 9 — The problem of inducing states and cities to provide for their own "unemployables" today was declared to be a major one confronting officials conducting the shift from the "dole" to the $4,000,000,000 work relief program.

Reiterating that after November 1 the Federal Government would put up money only for jobs, Harry L. Hopkins yesterday aimed sharp criticism at states he contended were not making provision for those unable to work and so excluded from the new federal program.

Hopkins estimated that states and cities would put up $600,000,000 —compared with the Federal Government's $4,880,000,000—during the 12 months beginning July 1 to provide for unemployables and help pay for work relief projects.

With works progress projects held to around $800 federal expenditures for each job created, money for materials for durable construction has depended on local contributions.

15,000 WPA Workers Urged to Quit Jobs

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 9—Launching a strike movement which threatens to encompass other large cities, union representatives today made flying visits to call 10,000 to 15,000 skilled workers from WPA jobs in protest against the government's security wage.

At the WPA headquarters it was said only about 700 workers were off their jobs today. Union officials made no estimate. About 100,000 jobs are involved in the dispute.

In defiance of warnings by Harry L. Hopkins, national WPA head, George Meany, President of the State Federation of Labor, declared:

"Our people are going out to stop union men on the job. They will continue to do so."

Unionists claim the security wage of $93.50 a month for skilled workers would be used by private employers as an excuse to lower wages.

8 VOTES DELAY CURLEY BONDS

Governor Curley's $4,500,000 public building bond issue bill was defeated temporarily in the House today, lacking eight of a necessary two-thirds vote.

The vote was 147 for to 86 against.

Reconsideration was secured, however, and the bill was scheduled to go to another vote.

The recent Rhode Island referendum on bond issues figured prominently in the debate and was used by both friends and foes of the $4,500,000 issue.

Representative Ernest J. Dean of Chilmark, Republican leader for the issue, asserted Rhode Island voters approved a bond issue for a mental hospital and other state construction.

On the other hand, Representative Horace T. Cahill of Braintree, Republican floor leader of the House and opponent of the bill, argued only a partial victory for bond issues was obtained in Rhode Island as several of these were voted down.

Mdivani Accident Costs Woman Eye

ITALY'S QUEST FOR WAR LOAN TURNED DOWN

Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

New York, Aug. 9—Efforts of the Italian government to arrange substantial credits in the world capital markets are meeting with a cold shoulder in London, Paris and New York, a prominent international banker here stated today.

Ordinary commercial credits, predicated on normal purchases of American products, are being awarded to good Italian risks without hesitation, he declared.

But when Italy, directly or through commercial intermediaries, endeavors to arrange abnormal credits obviously to purchase war materials, a polite but firm refusal results.

British and French bankers and industrialists already have made known their position to the Italians in unmistakable terms. The United States government, through the export-import bank, has refused to finance large-scale purchases of American cotton by Italy. Cotton is an important ingredient of war materials.

New York bankers point out that Italy, being a debt repudiator under the Johnson Act, could not float a direct loan here, even if the 40 per cent premium on her outstanding bonds itself did not make such a loan impossible.

Ethiopia Envoy Starts for Japan

Addis Ababa, Aug. 9—Dabe Birrou, former foreign office official, left for Japan today accompanied by an unidentified Japanese on a secret mission.

It was reported the mission had to do with the purchase of arms and ammunition from the Japanese.

A reliable source said Birrou would establish the first Ethiopian consulate in Japan, probably at Tokio.

In connection with the arms and ammunition report, it was said Ethiopia would attempt to obtain credit for at least 50 per cent of the value of the order.

Gerard Flies to Rome To Meet Mussolini

Rome, Aug. 9—James W. Gerard, American ambassador to Germany in early World War days, arrived here by air today for an appointment with Premier Benito Mussolini, but refused to confirm French and British reports that his visit concerned the Italo-Abyssinian crisis.

"My purpose is simple," Gerard told International News Service. "I have never previously had an opportunity to meet the man whom I consider Europe's most remarkable statesman.

"I want to make his acquaintance before I return to the United States."

'AH, WILDERNESS!' GRAFTON SPRUCES UP

Town's All Astir Over Movie

Go Gently, sweet Grafton,
Among thy green braes—
Watch out for them actors
With film taking ways.

And as for Town Clerk Robert S. Leonard, of Grafton, his phone rings from dawn to dark —his office looks like a convention headquarters the night before the election—there hasn't been time to make a single record for days—and he's getting spots before the eyes, dizziness and fainting spells.

All because Grafton was picked as a quiet spot in which to film the 1906 scenes of Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness!"

When the movie scouts found it—it WAS quiet. It WAS serene. It WAS rural. That was about a month ago.

It Was Rural

Today hundreds of movie-struck girls—probably powdered and well rouged, are ramping the main streets, giving it the effect of a Hollywood day off. Mothers of dozens of "infant prodigies" have them in tow, glaring at each other in the hotel—across bowling house tables, and swerving scornfully on Main street.

Once in a while—a month ago—an automobile driven by a visitor would whizz through the street—or wake the echoes and the inhabitants with a blatant honk. Now Main street sounds like Summer Tunnel two hours before the starter yells "They're off!"

The picture—in addition to a peaceful quiet—calls for pigeons, so the town has rounded up six and is feverishly getting a local corner on peanuts to be sure they'll stay. A brewery wagon and the hefty percherons has been found and the old open-ended trolley is all set for service again.

Actors on Way

Grafton's town band — which hasn't played since Memorial Day—has promised to fill the order.

"Must be funny — sour—and NO shined instruments."

And now has come the news that, in addition to the rush of cinema talent from Medway, Suncook, N. H., Killingworth, Conn., and Pejepscot, Me., technical directors, stage carpenters, electricians, camera men and actors are on their way from Hollywood ready to start filming on Monday.

Clarence Brown, a native of Grafton, will direct the filming.

The two featured juveniles, Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker, are en route.

And as for those two Boston girls who told Town Clerk Leonard they had been featured in musical shorts—he told them quick enough:

"Young ladies, this is a clean film."

JERSEY PROSECUTOR BARES WEALTH THEORY IN TRIANGLE SLAYING

By Associated Press

Salem, N. J., Aug. 9—Riches just beyond her reach, contrasted with a life of drudgery as a farmer's wife, caused Mrs. Marguerite F. Dolbow to plan with Norman Driscoll the slaying of her husband, Sheriff Hubert Layton disclosed today.

Two fortunes aggregating $140,000, officials said, were withheld from the 28-year-old school teacher because of her marriage to Harry Y. Dolbow, plodding tenant farmer, who was beaten to death with the iron axle of a harrow as he did his chores last Friday night.

The possibility that by disposing of him she might win her way to wealth provided the "main motive" for the crime, Sheriff Layton said.

"I have verified the fact that the sum of $140,000 was involved," he declared. "I figure that it was the main motive in the slaying of Dolbow."

State police consider the revival of a childhood love affair between Mrs. Dolbow and Driscoll as a secondary motive of the crime for which they are charged.

THOUSANDS AT STAKE

Corporal Wilfred Dubbie, detailing points in the alleged "money motive," said the wife and her farmer-friend "plotted to do away with Dolbow with the intention of getting married and gaining $40,000, left to Mrs. Dolbow by an uncle."

Mrs. Dolbow was unable to get the money, Dubbie said, because it "was tied up in such a way that Mrs. Dolbow's mother had entire discretion as to when it was to be turned over to her."

"The mother, Mrs. Genevieve Kirlin Fox, never liked Dolbow," Dubbie explained, "and did not let her daughter have the money after she married him."

Dubbie disclosed: "They also hoped eventually to share in another $100,000 trust fund created by Mrs. Dolbow's father, John Kirlin."

Kirlin was a wealthy South Jersey land owner.

"That money is now in possession of Mrs. Dolbow's mother and her aunt," the state policeman said. "At their death Mrs. Dolbow and Driscoll, if they were married, could expect to gain possession of it."

PAID FOR DIVORCE

Dubbie pointed out that the money may also explain why Driscoll gave his estranged wife $2000 to enable her to divorce him.

A receipt for this sum and an explanation of it was found in Driscoll's effects after his arrest.

"He figured $2000 was a good investment with the possibility of getting $40,000 and maybe $100,000 more," the corporal said. "They not only had to get Mrs. Driscoll out of the way—there was Mrs. Dolbow's husband. That led to the plot to murder him."

Prosecutor W. A. W. Grier announced Mrs. Dolbow made a statement admitting she plotted the slaying with Driscoll for three months. Grier said Driscoll was "her sweetheart."

Driscoll has stoutly denied any connection with the slaying.

When first arrested, Driscoll said he was at home in bed by 9 o'clock, on the night of the killing. John Dennis, his hired man, told police Driscoll was away and did not return until after midnight.

Police hold to their theory, based on Mrs. Dolbow's confession, that a hired killer either committed the deed or helped. They have brought charges of murder against her and against Driscoll, who she said was in the barnyard the night her husband was struck down.

They questioned Wilbert Drummond, Dolbow's farmhand, and held him as a material witness. Drummond told police he saw Driscoll at the Dolbow farm but that "another man" was with him and did the actual killing.

Filene Progresses After Relapse

Moscow, Aug. 9—Edward A. Filene, 73-year-old Boston merchant, dangerously ill of lobar pneumonia in the Moscow National Hotel here, was reported progressing satisfactorily today.

When he suffered two unexpected relapses yesterday, Dr. Fritz Meyer, German specialist in heart and lung disaffections, was summoned. He flew directly here from Berlin.

Dr. Meyer brought with him an oxygen tent and serum in the event that the Boston philanthropist should lose the ground he was said to have gained.

Not yet out of danger, he was said by medical attendants to have a "fighting chance of recovery."

It's "Two-Gun Tommy" Now, as Asbestos Heir Arms Against "Kidnapers"

One person who most earnestly hopes that kidnapers don't abduct asbestos heir Tommy Manville and hold him for ransom is blonde Marcelle Edwards, the fourth Mrs. Manville, now suing for divorce and asking a substantial slice of the vast Manville fortune for herself. (Pictures From International News Photograph Service.)

Even when he's shaving, Tommy Manville, Broadway playboy and heir to the Johns Manville asbestos fortune, keeps his two six-guns belted to his waist, these days. He believes that kidnapers are plotting to make him the victim of a "snatch" attempt. He has a private bodyguard and has asked special police protection.

Kidnapers, beware! Tommy Manville's armed bodyguard does the door-opening at the Manville apartment, and Tommy, himself, with his own artillery in readiness, guards the second line of defense.

Queer Quake Stirs New London

By Associated Press

New London, Ct., Aug. 9—Residents in New London were awakened early today by what they described as a terrific explosion or an earthquake.

The time was placed at between 2:30 to 3 a. m. (eastern standard time).

Harvard University seismograph station at Harvard, Mass., reported a slight shock occurred yesterday afternoon, but none was recorded since.

There were no reports of damage, although homes were shaken.

DAGGER GANG Flees Police Shots

Police bullets today riddled a gang car during a chase in South Boston, but the occupants, four members of the "Dripping Dagger" mob, escaped.

The gang car, with New York registration and apparently stolen, scattered a crowd of 100 persons at Fourth and Dorchester streets as it careened round the new South Boston loop with police in pursuit.

Patrolmen Martin and Aleck Nishy fired six shots at the car which was later found abandoned.

ASBESTOS HEIR'S FEAR

Kidnap Guard Put on Manville

New York, Aug. 9—The bodyguard of Thomas Franklin ("Tommy") Manville, heir to the Johns-Manville asbestos millions and Broadway's most active playboy, was strengthened yesterday by two members of the East 51st street detective bureau following his mysterious shadowing by four men.

Manville was convinced he had been marked as the victim of a band of kidnapers and that he was in momentary danger of being "snatched."

The sinister trailing of the millionaire youth began, he told police, in front of the Alvin Theater between the first and second acts of the play there.

Manville had been attending the theater with Betty Sundmark and Rosalie Fromson, two stage beauties who were recently sent back to the United States from London, where they were appearing in an American revue.

According to members of the Manville party, they left the theater during the entre-acte and went to an outdoor cafe for cocktails. A large sedan, with four men began following them.

Manville, observing the suspicious nature of the car and certain that they were after him, walked hastily to a drug store and called the police. He reported what he had seen and two detectives hurried to the spot.

When they arrived the mysterious car had disappeared.

Manville insisted the detectives accompany him and his party to his suite at the Elysee Hotel. They remained there for some time.

By that time, a private detective, regularly employed by Manville as his night bodyguard, came on duty. The party then went to a night club and remained until 4 a. m.

The four-times married millionaire admitted that since he received a number of threatening letters recently, he has employed both a night and a day bodyguard.

Manville is at present in the throes of marital litigation. His fourth and present wife, Marcelle Edwards, recently filed a complaint in a separation action, charging cruelty and citing that he locked her out of their country home on Premium Point, New Rochelle.

She states that he frequently struck her and flaunted other girls before her.

His private fortune, Mrs. Manville states in the complaint, consists of "means and property valued at $1,000,000" and that he receives the income from a $2,000,000 trust fund established by his late father, Johns Manville.

'Bill' Astor, New Heir, Sees N. Y.

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 9—The newest heir to the Astor millions, the infant son of John Jacob Astor and the former Ellen "Tucky" French of Boston, today took his first look at the outside world when Mrs. Astor left Doctors Hospital to return to the Astor mansion.

The proud father was on hand to inform newspapermen his son has been named William.

"Just plain Bill," said young Astor, "and you can say he looks exactly like me."

A CONVICT'S STORY DEATH TAKES A MAN

Death wrote an epilogue today to a story stranger than any fiction—the life of Frank Howard, ex-convict, alias James P. Steenburg.

A gentle-faced, white-haired man of 73, Steenburg—as he was known for the past 20 years—died at his home in Tainter street, Medford.

Arrested three years ago for stealing in order to feed a wife and daughter who were unaware he was a paroled convict, Steenburg was returned to state prison for life.

The Boston Evening American learned his story, which attracted national attention, and he was pardoned by then Governor Ely.

As Frank Howard, Steenburg was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1897 for participation in an armed robbery.

He served 17 years behind bars before he was paroled.

Then, under an assumed name, he became an industrious and prosperous citizen, married a woman 17 years his junior, and became a father.

From those who loved him he hid his secret until September 1, 1932, when—his job gone at the age of 70, his savings eaten up, hungry, and despondent—he walked to Boston, lacking carfare, stole a $2.50 pair of shoes from a bargain counter, and was caught in the act.

The parole system made mandatory his return to prison for life.

His wife and daughter and his neighbors, who could hardly believe that Steenburg was ex-convict Frank Howard, stood by him loyally.

His pardon was obtained within a few days of his arrest. The state obtained work for him and he had been receiving old age assistance.

PRICES HIGH, CROPS LOW

By Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 9—A deficiency in certain German food supplies was described by an authoritative source today as a possibility, with a definite shortage of fats and fruits already existing and with vegetable crops in doubt.

The authority said staples, like bread, grain and meat, were in a good position, but that the workingman was having difficulty getting what he wanted.

Three high Nazi officials—Count Wolf Hendrick von Helldorf, head of Berlin police; Julius Lippert, state commissioner for Berlin, and Prussian State Councilor Goeritzaer—were understood to be meeting Monday to consider the questions of food.

The government policy appeared to be to restrain prices of staple commodities, letting prices for foods which could be classified as luxuries rise as a sort of disciplinary measure.

While the Reich press turned again to "other nations' horrors and riots" and hailed liquidation of the Danzig-Poland customs dispute as a victory for the German cause, the Nazi drive against "state enemies" presented several new aspects.

SENATE WARS OVER TAX CHANGE

GROUP FORMED TO FIGHT TAX PROGRAM

By Universal Service

New York, Aug. 9—With its purpose the "protection of American investors and insurance policy holders in view of the current "soak the successful" tax bill pending in Washington, a non-political organization, "Investors and Policyholders, Inc." was launched here.

Immediate steps will be taken to institute necessary action for the protection of whose savings are imperilled by the Roosevelt administration's tax program, according to Frank Delaney, general counsel for the company, who explained the plans of the organization:

"Investors and holders of insurance policies have been seriously alarmed at the unfriendly policy suddenly proposed by those in charge of the national government.

"This harmful movement against such a large group of persons has been swiftly translated into the hurried and ill advised tax bill now pending in Congress.

PLAN NO HARM

"We are not convinced that individual members of the House and Senate have any desire to deprive their friends, neighbors and constituents of what is left of their savings and small investments and insurance policies salvaged from the depression for the safety of their families.

"We think that when Congress realizes by the activity of an organization in the interest of this large group of good and loyal citizens that they have not lost faith in their ability to support themselves and their families that the present unfriendly policy will be abandoned.

"There are 54,000,000 life insurance policyholders who own 60,000,000 separate policies and the best estimate available indicates that 12,000,000 persons own shares in American corporations, 94 per cent of which own less than 101 shares.

"Certainly these policyholders and in most cases these small investors can be said to be acting unselfishly when they seek by thrift to protect their dependents against want.

"The effect of the tax legislation upon this great class of thrifty citizens is quite apparent when it is realized that a graduated corporation tax will in fact be collected from them through the corporation insurance company in which they have put their faith and savings.

"As a measure to raise revenue it is conceded to be wholly inadequate. As an attack on bigness, if successful, it can only succeed in destroying the most fruitful sources of taxation and throw the entire burden directly upon incomes in the lowest classifications."

SECURITY BILL PASSAGE NEAR

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 10—Senate leaders believed today President Roosevelt's vast social security program, which has spent nearly seven months in Congress, was near the end of its trail.

They hoped by tonight the measure would repose on the President's desk in virtually the form the Chief Executive asked last January.

Only a last-minute fight by Senator Clark (D.), Missouri, for his amendment to exclude private pension plans stood in the way of final approval.

The amendment would exempt companies and employes covered by approved private pensions from the tax levied to support the federal old age pension system.

"The Tax Bill and The Tax Base"

Following is editorial reprinted from the July 30 issue of the New York Daily News, which is a supporter of the New Deal:

It is not much more fun to write editorials about taxes than it is to read tax editorials or pay taxes. However, there are a few things that ought to be written about the tax bill coming up for the final fight in Congress; so if you'll bear with us, here goes.

As we've repeatedly said, we believe th spread-wealth philosophy behind the bill is right. Money ownership and control have become concentrated in too few hands in this country for the country's own good. It is necessary to stimulate wealthy people to spread out some of this wealth among people who will spend it for anything from shoes to ships, just so they spend it, and let its life-giving effects circulate through business and pay envelopes.

It is still a question, though, whether this bill will do that.

The proposed gift tax increases seem especially ill advised. A person who gives money to somebody else is taxed now at a rate ranging from 4 per cent on the first $10,000, after the exempted $50,000, to 57 per cent on all over $10,000,000. This bill also slaps a gift tax on the person who receives the gift.

Assuming that you are a milionaire and make your son a gift of $1,000,000, you now have to pay the government a tax of $126,825 on the gift. Under this bill, you will have to pay the same $126,825, but the boy will also have to pay about $194,700.

How much encouragement is there in that to a rich man to give money during his lifetime to people who will spend it? Especially since there is another provision in this bill exempting gifts to non-profit-making charitable or educational organizations, hospitals, etc.

It is hard not to feel some sympathy with Senator Vandenberg's partisan but pithy remark that as a spread-wealth tax bill this one is a hoax.

There is another piece of disagreeable but true taxation philosophy which isn't touched on in this bill. We mean the principle, proved sound through ages of taxation experiments, that the tax base should be as broad as possible.

Practically everybody who earns any money should have to pay some tax, however small, which he can see and feel as it is wrenched out of his pocket by the government. This, for two main purposes—to keep as many people as possible healthily worried about how the politicians are spending tax money, and to keep the politicians healthily worried about spending the tax money with due respect to the public welfare and credit.

Our income tax base in this country is very narrow. Last year, out of an estimated 40,000,000 people gainfully occupied in this country, only 1,731,116 paid federal income taxes, or less than 5 per cent.

A 5 per cent income tax base is a dangerously narrow one. It is sure to weaken in people's minds the true democratic notion that we're all supposed to help support the government for our common welfare, and build up the demagogic and dangerous notion that it is up to a few people to support the government with the majority riding deadhead.

With a national election coming up next year, it is probably too much to ask of the New Dealers to do anything about broadening the income tax base now. But if they could put it on their program after their expected 1936 victory, they would perform a public service.

'Grass Roots' Leader Hits 'Soak Successful' Levies

By Universal Service

Chicago, Aug. 9—Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, Illinois' lone representative among the officers of the "Grass Rooters" uprising against the national administration, issued a blistering denunciation of the "Soak the Successful" tax proposals now under consideration by the Senate.

Elected vice-chairman of the "Grass Rooters" organization Wednesday when delegates from the ten Middle-West "Grass" states met here and perfected plans for a permanent, active organization, Mrs. Wheeler's attack on the pending tax legislation was her first formal statement as a leader in the revolt movement.

Characterizing the tax scheme as "un-American in principle and economically unsound," Mrs. Wheeler declared the proposed "new taxes a direct and serious threat to the nation's consumers and farmers. She added:

"Floods of deliberately deceitful propaganda have been released to persuade the public that these tax proposals are intended to establish a share-the-wealth program.

"Nothing could be farther from the truth. That sort of propaganda is rank political buncombe.

"Instead of sharing the wealth or promoting recovery, the poor will be made poorer. Recovery will be retarded. The cost of living will increase. Industry, instead of progressing, will go into another decline, forcing more people out of work.

"Agriculture, because of increasing unemployment and decreased purchasing power among consumers, will find itself deprived of profitable markets."

Plan Picnic

The Associated Courts of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters of South Boston will hold their annual outing at Lake Pearl Amusement Park, Wrentham, Sunday.

B. C. Cross

A cross, standing five feet high and built entirely of cancelled postage stamps from countries all over the world, is on exhibition at Boston College today.

The exhibit is in connection with the summer school for Catholic Action, which several hundred delegates are attending.

The Boston College Stamp Bureau, which makes substantial contributions to foreign missions from its receipts, constructed the cross to impress visitors with potentialities of collecting used stamps which many regard as worthless.

Stage Coach Vet Frisky at 77

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 9—A. N. Drake of Springfield, Mass., one of the few remaining stage coach drivers, was in Yarmouth today after a trip to Annapolis Royal to get a "peek at that old Yuskel stage coach being exhibited at the Hillside House there."

And just to remind folks a fellow is no older than he feels, Drake, who also claims he can take on all comers from distances between 100 yards and 10 miles, intends to throw a "well party" in New York next Monday to celebrate his 77th birthday.

"Why I drove one of those pesky things 60 years ago," he said referring to the coach exhibited at Annapolis Royal, "my run was on the Old Boston road to Springfield."

COPELAND ASKS "SOAK TAX" DELAY

BY SEN. ROYAL S. COPELAND, Chairman Senate Commerce Committee

Washington, Aug. 9 (US)—My firm conviction is that tax legislation should not be attempted at this session.

Changes in the tax law are of vital concern to every business interest in the nation. I know how agitated my state is over the subject.

Coupled with their anxiety over changing tax rates, the business interests of New York now have to shoulder the additional anxiety that a bill will be formulated and rushed through, in a form that may be careless and perhaps dangerous.

I firmly believe we are not making the cautious and well considered approach this paramount subject demands.

I say, solemnly, that Congress is in no physical condition at this time to deal effectively with the question. Tempers are short; nerves are frayed and members are weary of the long grind they have endured this session.

As a medical man, I have seen many successful operations botched by tired surgeons. In the field of economics, where a multitude of delicate and complex questions arise, clear thinking and fresh minds should be brought to the task.

Another point militating against the proposed tax program is that the levies are to apply only to taxes due at the end of 1935. If the schedule were made retroactive to cover last year's income on which there is a basis of experience, less objection might be manifest.

However, since the proposed levies are not to be collected until the middle of next March the Treasury does not stand to lose a dollar by postponing a decision on the bill under next winter.

There is now some sign of business recovery. To force a radical change in the tax structure upon the country now would only renew uncertainty and augment discontent.

Two Drown

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 9 (AP)—The west end of the municipal bridge ling Wisconsin and Minnesota collapsed today, plunging two persons to death in the Mississippi river. Two companions were saved, several months.

DRASTIC PLANS FOR REVISION ARE PUSHED

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 9—The administration tax plan, center of a furious struggle, headed into another major test today as the Senate finance committee was called into session behind closed doors to begin revamping the measure already approved by the House.

Conservatives were bent on cutting some of the new and higher rates the bill contains. Senator LaFollette (P.), Wisconsin, was determined to broaden its base in an attempt to bring in millions more in revenue.

Meanwhile, as leaders sought to hasten the bill to floor debate early next week, a prediction was made by Senator Borah (R.), Idaho, that Democratic chieftains would agree to a pact which would remove a major complication from the measure's path.

Borah, a leading backer of the Frazier-Lemke bill, said that Democratic leaders promised an early vote next session, the effort to tack it on the tax measure would be dropped.

Meantime, a sizeable bloc of conservative Democrats, believing their stand bolstered by the Rhode Island election in which a "New Deal" congressional candidate was counted on Republican support, committee for efforts to make drastic changes in the high schedule of rates proposed.

Also Senator La Follette and others who feel the huge federal emergency expenditures should be more nearly balanced with income, have drawn amendments to impose higher taxes on smaller incomes.

LaFollette proposed to jack up the normal income tax rate from the existing flat four per cent to six per cent, and to raise the surtaxes in the lower brackets and up all along the line, with a possible lowering of some of the House bill rates on the top incomes.

A Sequel to
3 Revolutions

The following very excellent editorial is reprinted in part from THE REFLEX, a monthly magazine of interest and importance.

THE REFLEX is edited by Dr. S. M. Melamed, a most capable and conscientious publisher, and has upon its editorial board such distnguished leaders of thought as Professor Albert Einstein of Princeton University, Professor P. S. Epstein of Pasadena, California, Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin, Dr. Abraham J. Rongy, Dr. Gabriel Segall, and Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver.

RUSSIA IS BLESSED with the Cheka, Nazi Germany with the Gestapo. Both secret police forces have the same rights, prerogatives, privileges, status and power. They are different in name only.

Russia and Germany have concentration camps. The Russian camps are either on the Solovetzky Islands in the north, or in Siberia, while the German are either in Dachau or Oranienburg. In the concentration camps in both countries only political prisoners are to be found, and in both they are treated alike. The sadism practised upon the prisoners of both camps is different in degree only. The active and dynamic Nazi makes a real effort to torture his political prisoner; the passive and sullen Russian just lets his prisoner suffer—hunger, thirst, or cold, and makes his life miserable without exerting himself.

In Nazi Germany, as well as in Communist Russia, the party is identical with the state. In both countries, the ruling parties have adopted the principle of absolute leadership and the leader of the party became the absolute ruler of the state. In Russia and Germany the ruling parties have declared themselves omniscient and omnipotent. This declaration of status spelled the doom of all other parties.

Thus, in both countries, the totalitarian and authoritarian state was established. In both countries the rights of man, as established by the French and the American Revolution, were abrogated. In either country man has no longer a right to his own thoughts, feelings, desires, ideals, and aspirations. He must renounce the sovereignty of his reason and accept the command of the state, that is to say, of the leader, whose power is unlimited, as in the satrapy of old.

IN both countries, the right not only of political but also of intellectual esthetics and sociological expression is abolished. In Russia, man is a machine or, to be more exact, an economically producing machine. His value is limited by the character of his economic usefulness. In Germany, man is a beast. The new German expression for the birth of a human being is: "The woman gives birth to the beast." The beast is only governed by urges and instincts. It has no freedom. It must not have any freedom. Thus the status of man in Germany and in Russia is exactly the same.

In Russia, there is only one press, the press of the party, which is the press of the government. In Germany, too, there is only one press, that of the Nazi party, which is the press of the government. In Russia, as well as in Germany, theater, radio, and the film are either a direct government monopoly or under absolute control of the government and party propaganda only.

Red Russia accomplished her revolution with the help of Chinese and Lettish military cadres. In Germany, the Nazis brought about their revolution with the help of the Storm Troops.

Psychologically, the military auxiliary forces of the Bolshevik revolution and the auxiliary military forces of the Nazi revolution are of the same type—morally worthless men, starved and demoralized men; men whose vision of the future was dimmed by political and economic despair, men who were ready to do almost anything to get a piece of bread or a uniform. The auxiliary forces of both revolutions were by-products of the World War.

IN Russia, the head of the party, Stalin, is a non-Russian, a foreigner, who hails from Georgia. In Germany, the head of the party, who is the head of the state, is likewise a non-German, a foreigner, an Austrian. In Russia, many of the main advisers to the head of the state are foreigners. In Germany, the two principal advisers to Hitler are Rosenberg, who is a Balt, and Hans Spahnknobel, a German-American.

In Russia, the fight against religion became one of the main planks of the Red revolution, and in Germany, the fight against religion, or more correctly, against Christianity, started long before the Brown revolution came to a head. It is not commonly known that as far back at 1922, young Nazi hoodlums would enter Catholic churches in Bavaria during worship hours and heap insults upon the officiating priests for mentioning the name of Jesus Christ, who, they declared, was a foreigner and must not be worshipped in Germany.

Red Russia has destroyed the Greek Orthodox Church and transaformed thousands of churches either into stables or workmen's clubs; and Nazi Germany is now working hard to destroy the Roman Catholic and Protestant churches by imprisoning the priests and the pastors, by terrorizing the faithful, and by actively encouraging and subsidizing anti-Christian propaganda. It took Red Russia only ten years to destroy the Greek Orthodox Church. It will take Nazi Germany less than that to destroy the Roman Catholic and the Protestant churches.

IN Red Russia, the intellectural is suspected and hated; in Germany, he is terrorized and held in contempt. The first nefarious deed of the red brethren was to dismantle the Russian universities, to expel the professors and to replace them by Bolshevik propagandists and to reduce Russian intellectual life to zero. One of the first things the Nazis did, upon their coming into power, was to dismantle the German universities, to expel the professors who were a glory to the name of German science and learning, and to replace them by Nazi agitators.

These striking similarities of the main features of the life of Brown Germany and Red Russia find their explanation in the fact that the Red, as well as the Brown sect, while feigning to hear a different music of the future, are in final analysis swayed by an identical theme song—to reduce men to such a position that they be only a means to an end and not an end in themselves.

In both countries, one program is adhered to—the program against the sovereignty and dignity of man's reason. Whatever the difference between the Red Slav and the Brown Teuton, both are animated by a savage desire to reduce man to a machine or an animal and to deprive him of every vestige of intellectual, spiritual, and political independence.

While these phenomena may not have escaped the attention of keen observers, it has generally never been noticed that Brown Germany only followed suit, imitating Red Russia in every detail. The initiative for this campaign against man and his freedom must be credited to Russia; Germany only followed a set pattern. It is remarkable that so gifted a people as the Germans should not have invented one single institution of their own when they embarked upon their mad policy of neodespotism. This also testifies to the sterility of Nazism.

OUR object in calling attention to this similarity in Red and Brown institutions, policies, tendencies, attitudes, and moods, is to point out that whoever fights the one tendency must necessarily battle the other. One cannot fight the Nazies without, at the same time, combating Communism, for both are interlinked, psychologically and historically. They are an unholy twin.

In materialistic, Marxistic, Communistic Russia, the fight against Judaism has assumed the form of a war against Jewish religion, Jewish ethics, and their derivative institutions. In racial, zoological and pathological Germany, the fight against Judaism has assumed the form of a war against Jewish blood. Jewish blood disqualifies a man and deprives him of his right to live, just as in Russia the Jewish spirit, deprives a man of his right to existence.

The fact that in Russia a person conscious of his Judaism is persecuted and oppressed and that in Germany a person with Jewish blood flowing in his veins is hunted and tormented, does not constitute a different attitude toward Judaism. On the contrary, it indicates that the attitude is the same. But this similarity of attitude is not chance or accident, but a logical consequence of a certain and definite attitude to life and to the world.

The Jews, all over the world, hailed the French Revolution, in spite of its terrors, as a Messianic phenomenon in history, because they felt that the doctrine of the revolution, with its proclamation of man's freedom, man's dignity, and man's reason, was an echo of the sounds of Mount Sinai.

The French Revolution redeemed man from the shackles of medievalism and ushered in an era of human progress and enlightenment which lasted 120 years.

THE Red and Brown revolutions, however, destroying the very deed of the French Revolution, the emancipation of man, were recognized by the Jews, who have a very fine ear for world historic tremors, as calamities of cosmic magnitude. Nor could it be forgotten that, while the French Revolution emancipated the Jew in Europe, the Red and Brown revolutions enslaved him—not by chance or accident but because the spirit of these two revolutions were deliberately and planfully directed against Judaism with its idealistic world picture.

When you hate an idea, you also hate its bearer. Both Red Russia and Brown Germany hate the Jew with a terrific hatred; the one hates him spiritually, the other biologically. Of course, there is no governmental anti-Semitism in Russia—after the Bolshevik government had reduced Russian Judaism to dust and ashes. One does not persecute dust and ashes.

If the Russian Jews had any possibility of resisting the onslaught of the Red state against Judaism and could cling to Jewish traditions and to Jewish spiritual heritage, every Russian Jew would rot away in a Russian concentration camp. Having blown out every spark of life of Russian Judaism, the government can leave the Jew unmolested.

BROWN Germany has not yet succeeded in annihilating the last vestige of life of all German Jewry, whose very existence is a protest against the essence of Nazism; hence the white rage and black fury of the Nazis against the unfortunate German Jews.

American Jews, who either sympathize or play with Red Russia, are not less perverted intellectually than the few Nazi Jews in Germany who are led by that renegade, Dr. Neumann. Those American Jews—and fortunately, they are only a handfull—who sympathize with Red Russia, either conceal their empty minds and hearts or they are victims of a stupid vogue.

They do not realize that they are in sympathy with that sinister force which has created a pattern for Nazi Germany, which has destroyed the attainments of the French revolution, and in doing so has forced man to turn the clock backward.

DRIVER KILLED, GIRL INJURED IN CRASH

In a highway tragedy that followed a dance at a New Hampshire summer resort, a Brookline youth was killed today and his girl companion, member of a wealthy Newton family, was seriously injured.

Martin K. Adams, 24, of 165 Naples road, Brookline, was crushed to death in the wreckage of his car which left the Laconia highway on a curve near Alton Bay, N. H., and struck a tree.

His companion, Helen L. Dermon, 21, of 138 Central street, Auburndale, daughter of Walter A. Dermon, Charlestown soap manufacturer, suffered internal injuries and head wounds.

Authorities found Adams' body in the wreckage and worked for an hour to free it.

Adams was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon F. Adam of Malden and a graduate of Dartmouth last year.

MARTIN K. ADAMS

Surviving an Alton Bay, N. H., auto crash in which her companion, Martin K. Adams, 24, of Naples road, Brookline, was killed, Miss Helen L. Dermon, 21, of Central street, Auburndale, is suffering today from head wounds and possible internal injuries.

ROXBURY DEATH WIFE GIVEN PROBATION

Pleading guilty to manslaughter in the death of her husband, after a jury failed to reach an agreement in seven hours, Mrs. Ernestine Henderson was freed on probation today.

Mrs. Henderson, who lives in Harrishoff street, Roxbury, told on the stand how Hilton Henderson was shot during a struggle for possession of a pistol in front of their home last May.

Judge Vincent Brogna, when the jury failed to agree, and after the woman had pleaded guilty to the manslaughter charge, placed her on probation.

In her testimony, Mrs. Henderson alleged her husband had been unfaithful.

Back Bay Woman Found Dying in Tub

Unconscious from an overdose of sleeping tablets, Miss Mary I. Powers, 60, was found today in a bathtub half filled with water in her apartment on Hemenway street, Back Bay.

Two notes indicating despondency over ill-health were found near her by the building superintendent, who had entered the apartment with a fire inspector.

Miss Powers was rushed to City Hospital by Dr. James Wardell. Her name was placed on the danger list.

One note was addressed to E. S. Powers of Glenside, Pa., believed to be a brother, and the other to Mrs. E. T. Hathay of Yarmouth, Me., believed to be a sister.

2 Fall River Girls Beaten by Youths

Harwich, Aug. 9—Badly beaten by two youths who attacked them on a lonely stretch of the main highway in Harwichport, two Fall River girls are in a critical condition at the Cape Cod Hospital today.

They are Jane Collins, 20, and Dorothy Shea, 22. The younger girl lost three teeth, suffered serious scalp wounds and severe contusions all over her body.

Police arrested Carleton Chase, 17, and Joseph Dumont, 21, and charged them with attempted criminal attack. They were held in $2000 each.

Thugs Pen Threat In Lynn Outrage

Seven Lynn homes were entered yesterday by burglars whom police believe are operating with false keys. At the home of Morris Lait, Baker street, they left a note:

"We'll be back."

Jewelry, rugs, cash and bric-a-brac were stolen, aggregating more than $1000.

Other homes entered were those of Mrs. Benita LeBlanc, Baker street; Joseph Drouin, Henry avenue; David Manna, Chestnut street; Mrs. Annie M. Haven, Courtland street, and Mrs. Theresa Ferguson, Coburn street.

King Carol Fights Fire

LEGISLATURE HAS ENVIABLE 1935 RECORD

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

With an enviable record for passage of labor and humanitarian laws, the 1935 Legislature, lengthiest in the history of the state, is in its dying throes.

Prorogation has been set for tomorrow night and, barring unforeseen contingencies, legislative leaders are hopeful of putting through this schedule.

Probably the most outstanding accomplishments have been made in the liberalization of workmen's compensation laws. Through an agreement with industrial leaders, bills to correct injustices complained of by organized labor for a score of years have been put through. Many of these have been regarded as "hardy annuals."

WIN 25-YEAR FIGHT

Through the enactment of the anti-injunction law, labor also saw its efforts over a period of 25 years finally crowned with success.

Without Governor Curley at the helm of the ship of state, encouraging and lending his complete support to the program, labor might have missed the opportunity and had to wait many more years for the changes.

Apart from the work and wages bond issues, $13,000,000 of which has already been authorized, a checkup of his inaugural recommendations reveals this success to a marked degree.

NEW JOBS PROVIDED

His 48-hour week suggestion for institutional employes is now on the statute books and some 1600 more persons will be gradually sandwiched into the institutions starting next September.

Mortgage interests rates, light and gas rates were lowered, and automobilists were relieved of the expense of the so-called guest clause in the compulsory insurance law.

Through a reorganization of the state police, a more effective anti-crime machine was built up, and teeth were put into the anti-narcotic laws.

Real estate speculators were handed a staggering blow with the enactment of a law which taxes 50 per cent of their profits they make on land takings, provided the property is acquired within one year of the takings.

OATH MANDATORY

To check the dissemination of subversive propaganda against the American form of government and institutions, bills were placed on the statute books requiring that the colors be displayed in all public schools and the repeating in unison at frequent intervals of the pledge of allegiance to the flag and the taking of an oath of allegiance to the constitutions of the United States and the state by teachers in public and private schools and colleges was made mandatory.

The Legislature also took a prominent part in the defeat of United States entrance into the court of the League of Nations when a large majority of the members signed petitions to Senators Walsh and Coolidge to vote against such entrance, advice which the two Senators acted upon.

PROTEST PROCESSING TAX

Following the active leadership of Governor Curley, the Legislature also protested to Washington against the processing tax and directed the State Department of Labor and Industries to investigate the inroads made on home industries by the influx of cheap foreign goods.

A state planning board was created and appropriations made to advertise the state both industrially and as a recreation center.

To place the textile industry in a better position to compete with other sections of the country, the law which prohibited women from working in the mills after 6 p. m. was suspended.

The amount of wages which was exempt from attachment was raised to benefit the worker and the public utilities department was relieved of the necessity of having part of the salaries of the commissioners paid by the public utilities companies.

BANK TAX OUT

House O. K.'s Plan

The House today concurred with the Senate in amending the bill to impose a 10 per cent surtax on incomes, corporation and inheritance taxes and on savings banks and savings departments of trust companies by eliminating the banks from the bill's provisions.

Without debate the House also enacted today the bill transferring $9,500,000 to the general fund from the state highway fund to prevent that amount being saddled on the property owners through the state tax.

UTILITY PROBE

Fund Boost Loses

Without debate the House accepted an adverse report on a bill to increase the $5000 appropriation for an investigation of the public utility companies of the state up to $25,000.

After the $5000 appropriation was made, the Governor began negotiating with Washington in an effort to have the Federal Trade Commission come here to do the work. Conversations are still in progress.

Ga'li Curci Faces Knife

SEE 11 MILES IN DARK

Tour Boston Water Tube in Canoes

By Associated Press

Ware, Aug. 9—An 11-mile canoe trip in darkness was made today by half a dozen men in two canoes.

They were making a final inspection of the Coldbrook-Smith tunnel before it is turned over to the state.

The tube connects the Quabbin and Boylston reservoirs of the Boston water supply system.

The party, with flashlights for illumination, was headed by David Kenniston, engineer for the Boston Water Supply Commission, and James Horan, general superintendent for the contractors who built the tunnel. The cruise took several hours.

LYNN MAN Found, Mind Blank

Benjamin Veiner, 53, of Williams avenue, Lynn, was found in a dazed condition wandering along elevated tracks in Third avenue, New York City, today.

Veiner left home last Monday, his wife told police. She said he had been ill for several weeks.

PEQUOT MILLS REJECT RAISE

By Associated Press

Salem, Aug. 9—Officials of the Pequot Mills today rejected union-proposed working agreement calling for a 25 per cent wage increase.

Agent J. Foster Smith said it was impossible for the company to accept the agreement in view of the present condition of the cotton industry.

Announcing the proposal yesterday the union said a holiday would be declared Monday if the terms were not accepted.

Union workers probably will meet before that time, however, to determine the course of action.

GRETA GARBO'S ANKLE

Temperamental Star Hurt on Boat

By International News Service

Stockholm, Aug. 9—In a boyish prank which her friends describe as a "fit of daring," Greta Garbo, film star, sprained her ankle today while on a yachting party off Baggenfjaerden, one of the numerous islands near Stockholm.

In a role far from that she usually portrays on the screen, the versatile Garbo suddenly left her friends and climbed high on the vessel's mast. The ship lurched and she fell heavily to the deck. Her injury was described as painful but not serious.

She has often been seen sailing among the coastal islands during the past six weeks, generally wearing a simple grey flannel costume and cape.

Ex-State Official Dies

Springfield, Aug. 9 (AP)—Joseph St. Martin, 75, for 22 years state supervisor of assessors until his retirement in 1930, died last night in his home here.

51ST TRY ENDS WOMAN'S LIFE

Worcester, Aug. 9—Mrs. Mary A. Parker, 56, of Maplewood street, Watertown, patient at Worcester State Hospital, committed suicide today in the hospital by hanging.

Officials said it was her 51st attempt since she was admitted July 25. She was transferred here from Boston Psychopathic Hospital.

A maid found the woman's body hanging from a shower curtain bar, a piece of underclothing knotted around her neck.

Mrs. Parker, reported by authorities to be the wife of John W. Parker, was mother of several children.

FORD, COUNIHAN LOOM AS JUDGES

Speculation as to President Roosevelt's choice for the new federal court judgeship in Boston today included the names of two of his former classmates in Harvard.

These are United States Attorney Francis J. W. Ford and Judge Edward Counihan, Jr., associate justice of the Cambridge Municipal Court.

Also prominently mentioned is George Sweeney, of Gardner, now assistant United States attorney-general at Washington.

Other names are expected to enter the political contest for the $10,000 post.

The judgeship became open yesterday when Congress enacted a bill recreating the judgeship left vacant by the death of James A. Lowell. This post was created to take care of court congestion resulting from prohibition and went out of existence with the death of Judge Lowell.

CLIPPER HOPS Today for Wake

Alameda, Cal., Aug. 9 (AP)—Commercial aviation's Pacific frontier will be given another push toward the Orient today when Pan-American Airways' 19-ton clipper starts a flight to tiny Wake Island, nearly 5000 miles to the west.

Shakespeare Kin Weds Baron's Son

FLYING WEDGE AIDS NUPTIALS

Smiling radiantly and answering the age-old question in a tremulous voice, Mrs. Mary E. Rowland, descendant of the bard, Shakespeare, was married today in the East Cambridge district clerk's office to Wolfgang Philip von Schmertzing, son of a German baron and Harvard graduate student.

The ceremony culminated a romance which began in Winnipeg three years ago when the bride was working in a tearoom and the bridegroom was working on a railroad to finance his college studies.

The couple first went to Cambridge City Hall, where they hoped to be married by City Clerk Frederick H. Burke. Burke told them in his office, which was crowded to the doors, that his religion forbade him from performing the ceremony.

Clerk Burke, however, lent a hand to Cupid, when he offered to drive the couple to East Cambridge court. They accepted, and a "flying wedge" was formed to force a path out of the building.

"We have no plans," said Von Schmertzing, when questioned about a honeymoon. "We will reside in Shaler lane temporarily. Beyond that I have nothing to say."

It was the bride's second marriage. She obtained a divorce six years ago. She is a native of London, daughter of Allan W. Wills and Sara Shakespeare Wills.

Mr. Von Schmertzing is a native of Riga, Latvia.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolfgang Philip von Schmertzing.

STATE PRISON CUT TO 874

Crime in Massachusetts may not be at its lowest ebb in four years, but the prison population of Charlestown prison is.

With the transfer today of 11 prisoners to the prison colony at Norfolk, only 874 remain, of which 433 are lifers.

The greatest number at the prison has been 963, and the lowest was 866 in 1931.

Harlow and Powell Buying Pots, Pans

By Associated Press

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 9—Fresh impetus was given today to rumors of an off screen romance between Jean Harlow, platinum haired movie star, and the debonair William Powell.

The two, known as ultra-sophisticates of the films, were sighted shopping in a Santa Barbara store yesterday in the pots and pans department.

Neidecker Horses Sold

Paris, Aug. 9 (AP)—The racing stable of B. Coles Neidecker, New York and Paris banker, who was declared bankrupt last month, was auctioned off today. The two horses, Zodiac and Antonio, brought a total of 5650 francs—about $372.

PARALYSIS HITS TRADE SCHOOL

Discovery of a case of infantile paralysis in the Farm and Trade school, Thompson's Island, today sent a corps of doctors and nurses to the school.

More doctors were despatched by Dr. Frederick J. Bailey, deputy health commissioner, to Jamaica Plain, where three cases were reported.

In all, six more cases were recorded today, bringing the total to 60 in Boston since July 15.

Frank Guzzetti, 10, was the victim at the Trade school. He was taken to Children's Hospital. An immediate quarantine of the 200 boys and instructors who came in contact with him was ordered.

ZENGE INDICTED In Love Slaying

Chicago, Aug. 9 (AP)—A true bill charging Mandeville W. Zenge, Missouri carpenter, with murdering his love rival, Dr. Walter J. Bauer, by a penknife mutilation, was reported returned by the grand jury.

The reported action came after Prescutor Charles S. Dougherty presented witnesses to substantiate circumstantial evidence the state claims it has against Zenge, who through five days of questioning maintained he was innocent of the crime.

Pilot's Skill Averts Air Tragedy

Newark, N. J., Aug. 9—While police, firemen and ambulances waited, a crippled transport plane was brought to a thrilling but safe landing here today.

The ship's landing gear had jammed, and efforts to fix it en route from Washington had been unsuccessful.

High over Baltimore, Co-Pilot Albert Duke made a hazardous climb over the wing, found the right wheel out of line and tried to remedy the trouble.

For 20 minutes they circled Newark airport, persons below watching tensely.

Herding passengers into the rear of the ship, Willey glided in at an angle to allow the good left wheel to strike first. The shock of landing sprung the defective wheel into line and the plane speeded over the runway safely.

NEW U. S. LAW Arrests Man Here

Arrested in a South End lodging house, Floyd H. Parrish, 23, of Smithfield, N. C., alleged witness of a serious crime in North Carolina, was held by federal authorities today for extradition. The arrest is the first here under the new law which holds anyone travelling interstate to avoid giving testimony in criminal proceedings to be fugitive. The government claims Parrish came to Boston on funds furnished by the accused.

U. S. REDS YIELD ON ATHEISM

By Associated Press

Moscow, Aug. 9—An assurance that Communists in America would not disturb the religious beliefs or practices of others who wished to join them in a united front movement was given today by an American delegate, Gil Green, to the Communist Internationale.

"The uniform front is not directed against religious convictions, but against political reaction," asserted Green, using the word reaction to refer to alleged Fascist tendencies.

Green said proof of Communists' sincerity was found in their attitude during the second American youth congress, when religiously inclined participants were permitted to have church services on Sundays.

The Communists thus avoided a split in the united front movement, Green is head of the American Comsomol, or Communist youth organization.

G-MEN TESTIFY In Gallo Case

G-men who investigated receipt of five threatening letters by Walter E. Poor, wealthy business man of Salem and Marblehead, were witnesses before the grand jury in the federal building today.

Joseph K. Gallo, former Salem High School athlete, is charged with sending the letters.

ATHLETES SAY:

"THEY DON'T GET YOUR WIND"

LOU GEHRIG, "Iron Man of Baseball," says of Camels: "I like their mildness. Camels are so mild they never interfere with my wind or my 'fighting trim.' There are plenty of times when I feel tired after a game. Then I get a 'lift' with a Camel."

JOSEPHINE McKIM, of Hollywood, member of two Olympic swimming teams, and former holder of many free-style records. "One of my hard and fast rules in connection with smoking," she says, "is that I always choose a Camel. Camels are such a mild cigarette that I can smoke them steadily. They never bother my wind. 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!'"

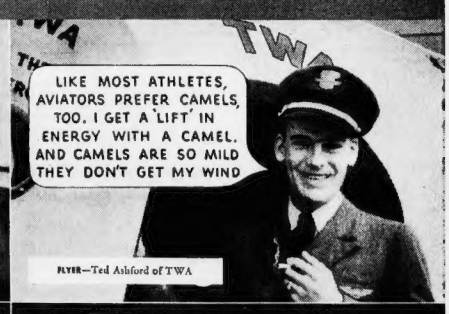
So Mild! YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT!

"GENE SARAZEN, champion of champions: "I have to keep in condition. So it's important to me as a steady smoker that Camels are milder. Extra millions are spent for the choice tobaccos in Camels. They never get my wind or upset my nerves."

LESTER STOEFEN, U. S. tennis doubles champion with George Lott. Both smoke Camels. Stoefen says: "No matter how steadily I smoke, Camels are so mild that they never get my wind or disturb my 'condition.' And Camels have a better flavor."

I PICKED CAMELS LONG AGO. I CAN SMOKE THEM CONSTANTLY WITHOUT AFFECTING MY PHYSICAL FITNESS, BECAUSE CAMELS ARE A MILDER, GENTLER CIGARETTE

HOMEMAKER—Mrs. Charles F. Ryder



LIKE MOST ATHLETES, AVIATORS PREFER CAMELS, TOO. I GET A 'LIFT' IN ENERGY WITH A CAMEL. AND CAMELS ARE SO MILD THEY DON'T GET MY WIND

FLYER—Ted Ashford of TWA

ELECTRICAL ENGINEER—G. E. Goodwin

I'M NOT A FAMOUS ATHLETE BUT IT'S SATISFYING TO SMOKE A TRULY MILD CIGARETTE ... CAMELS. I SMOKE LOADS. CAMELS HAVE A SWELL FLAVOR!

FASHION DESIGNER—Emily M. Boyle

NEW RADIO TIME FOR MUSICAL DRAMATICS

By N. F. T.

Followers of the popular coast-to-coast "Beauty Box" broadcasts, heretofore heard Tuesday nights, will note the switch to Friday evenings (WBZ), beginning with the 60 minutes from 9 until 10 o'clock tonight.

Rose Bampton, well-known Metropolitan Opera contralto, will occupy the "mike" spotlight for the initial new schedule performance, that of Sigmund Romberg's romantic "The Desert Song," as adapted for broadcasting.

This is the weekly hour during which Francina White has been starring, with Theodore Webb and John Barclay in the supporting cast. It has long been a highlight on the Tuesday schedule of dial doings. Sponsors and critics expect the turn to attract even wider attention in the new Friday night network niche. All of which gives rise to a revival of the old argument in radio-land concerning what might be the best evening of the week for loudspeaker patronage. Usually it's the quality of the effort and the popularity of the artists that govern program prominence, not time of night or the specific evening involved.

N. F. T.

PRESENTING PEARCE

Without "slickin' up" either their acts or their appearance—on the theory that folks like the same kind of entertainment nights as they do days—Al Pearce and His Gang, West Coast matinee wows, start their first evening show series (WEEI) tonight at 10 o'clock.

Al and his happy-go-lucky boys and girls claim they will shatter Radio City traditions when they show up opening night in the same flannel slacks, sports jackets and tennis dresses they wear five afternoons a week for their matinees out West. Sounds sort of silly if it's so.

Clark Gable and Jean Harlow, two of filmdom's most popular costars, will make their first radio appearance together as Dick Powell's guest artists during the "Hollywood Hotel" broadcast (WNAC) this evening from 9:00 to 10:00 p. m.

They will enact dramatic scenes from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new picture, "China Seas," adapted from the best-selling novel of the same name, and which has been more than a year in the making and due for Loew's State theater showing in Boston soon.

SOCIALIST STALWART

Norman Thomas, leader in the Socialist party, and George Gordan Battle, prominent New York attorney, will discuss jointly the subject, "Our Civil Liberties," during the "Intercollegiate Council" program early tonight (WAAB) between 8 and 6:15 p. m. They will talk from New York studios.

Radio Answers

Q—Who are the characters in that "Magoogie Family" feature through WBZ-WBZA channels? Who writes the script?

B. S. of Somerville.

A—They are Dwight Meade and a Mrs. Doris Knapp of Salem, with her young daughter, Dorothy. Meade writes the doings.

Q—Who is "Shandor," the violinist? Has he any sponsors?

F. W., of Attleboro.

A—He insists, as do the broadcasters, that he remain unknown. Isn't it thrilling? He has no sponsors and his turn originates in New York.

Q—What operatic experience has Mary McCoy had?

Aria, of Dedham.

A—Mary was with the Metropolitan Opera and also with Schumann-Heink's concert company, and is rated among the leading divas in the classic soloing fraternity.

Q—Is Lanny Ross' "Log Cabin" program still on the air? How old is Joe Lilly, who sings the "Secret Agent X-9" theme song with "Uncle Newt" every Tuesday night over WAAB waves?

Joanne, of Roslindale.

A—No, the feature is suspended. Lanny is now doing his "Showboat" turn and his "State Fair Concert" half hour, the former on Thursday nights and the latter on Sunday evenings. Joe is just 19 years old.

Q—How old is the page boy named Johnny, who calls for those cigarettes so effectively and introduces the songs of his "Foursome" group?

B. P. of Braintree.

A—Johnny is 25 years old.

WANTS MEDAL FOR RIVER HERO

"THE TROUBLE FIXER"

Public Service Department, Boston Evening American.

This department has been instituted as a public service for Boston Evening American readers. It will endeavor to solve problems and fix trouble dealing with city, state or public utility service. Requests must be specific and brief. No anonymous requests, nor matter of a purely private nature can be considered.

Some time ago Miss Dora O'Hanlon of Walnut street, Dorchester, saw a woman rescued from drowning near the edge of a waterfall in the Ausable river, New York. She wrote "The Trouble Fixer" for information as to the recommendation of the hero-rescuer for the Carnegie Hero Fund Medal.

Although there is no local Carnegie board in Boston, the Massachusetts Human Society informs "The Trouble Fixer" that recommendations can be made to Mr. C. B. Ebersol, assistant manager, Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, Oliver building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mike Moore, South Boston: I cannot act on your request because you did not send enough information. From what source does the odor originate?

Especially in the summer are unsanitary lots dangerous. Not only is the odor foul and disagreeable, but the "dump" acts as a breeding ground for flies and mosquitoes.

The sanitary division of the Boston health department is now investigating the condition of a Hamlin street yard, South Boston.

Another investigation is being carried on by the Watertown health department, who are looking into the condition of the lot at the corner of Warren and Chapman streets.

"The Trouble Fixer" is especially glad to do away with such health menaces as unsanitary lots.

Cohasset Prepares for Annual Horse Show

By BETTY ALDEN

WHILE NEWPORT is busy with tennis week, which begins Saturday, and ordering champagne and orchids for its lovely debutantes, who are bowing to society at balls every night next week, Cohasset is getting all excited about its annual horse show, which begins next Thursday . . . The show is always tops in the social and sporting program of the South Shore and is truly a big event.

MRS. HUGH BANCROFT, JR.

It will be even more exciting than in former years, and will take on more of the aspect of a hunt meet for new jumps have been added to the enlarged outside course and other improvements have been made at the horse show ring on the estate of Mrs. Hugh Bancroft . . .

Thursday, Friday and Saturday are the days reserved for the show and festivities in honor of visiting exhibitors and judges . . .

Three-Day Show

THE PEERS AND NOBLES of the equine kingdom will hold court in the show ring . . . and prominent owners from far and wide are bringing their stables on to compete in the three-day show . . .

Mr. Adrian Van Sinderen of Washington, Ct., Mrs. Louis Kaiser of Terre Haute Farms, Bethel, Ct., are prominent among the out-of-town exhibitors . . . Among the "local" talent who will take part in the show are Miss Miriam Winslow, who has returned from Europe in time to enter her champion blueboods . . . Miss Marian Atherton has joined the list of exhibitors, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kennedy and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft have entered mounts from their stables, and Mrs. Francis Gleason will enter her famous white prize winner . . .

Lovers of fine horses who will preside in their boxes during the show are Mr. and Mrs. J. Francis McElwain, Miss Muriel Crocker, Miss Elsie B. Holdsworth, Mrs. Charles E. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Sawyer, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, Mrs. George E. Brown, Mrs. Edward P. Bailey . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Royden Loring, Mrs. Eliot Hubbard, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Howes, Miss Mary Howes, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Barker, Mrs. Albert W. Todd, Dean Milo H. Gates, Mr. Loring Q. White, Mr. William R. Cordingly, Mr. William C. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Petit, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Kimpton and Mr. and Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer are others who are planning to attend with family parties . . .

Will Spend Winter Abroad

WHILE THESE SUMMER vacationers are concentrating on the joyous festivities which will just about bring another summer to a close, Mrs. Charles B. Prince of Beacon street is already thinking about the pleasant winter in store for her and her daughters, Priscilla and Halldis . . . Several winters ago, Mrs. Prince occupied a villa on the Riviera while her daughters absorbed old world culture in private schools in France . . . That was before Justine Prince was married and went to New York to live . . .

This autumn Mrs. Prince will repeat the experience, accompanied by Priscilla and Halldis and Charles, who will join them at the end of his globe-circling adventures . . .

Priscilla Prince has made quite a name for herself as a bridesmaid and maid of honor at society weddings but she is not haunted by the pessimistic old proverb . . . She is so popular and attractive that she can confidently snap her fingers at the supposedly disastrous results of being more than three times a bridesmaid . . . She recently acquired a new country house in Dublin, N. H., and this summer has had the unique experience of playing hostess to her mother and younger brother and sister . . .

Hallie is a sub-deb who will be groomed in the fine art of social conduct in France this winter and then return to graduate with her class at Winsor . . .

Gardiners Plan for Deb Season

MRS. FOSTER GARDINER and her two attractive daughters, Polly and Isabel, have been visiting in North East Harbor . . . Later in the autumn they will move into one of Mrs. Larz Anderson's cottages in Brookline to spend the winter near the scene of most of the activities of the new debutante group of which Isabel is a member . . . It seems as though Isabel may get a nice present of a coming out party at the Larz Anderson's beautiful palace in Brookline, just like sister Polly's two years ago . . .

Mr. and Mrs. William Chick gave a small dinner party last evening at their Swampscott summer home in honor of their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Clark . . .

In a family party with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davis at Stockbridge are Mr. and Mrs. John Clarkson Potter of Beverly (Mary Davis), and also their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Paschall Davis (Evelyn Ames) of New York . . . Tomorrow Mrs. Davis, Sr., is giving a luncheon in honor of Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, who will be one of the prominent guests at the Symphony festival matinee . . .

Mrs. Bayard Warren at Saratoga

MRS. BAYARD WARREN of Hamilton, one of the North Shore's prominent horse and dog fanciers, has gone to Saratoga for a few days to witness the racing there . . . She is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Sage in their cottage in Saratoga . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillespie gave a dinner dance Wednesday evening in honor of their debutante daughter, Phyllis, whom they will formally present to society in New York on Thanksgiving Day . . . The party took place at their summer home in Newport with a bevy of other attractive Newport debs among the guests . . .

MISS JANE DAY of New Haven, has returned to Watch Hill, Rhode Island, to the summer home of her grandmother, Mrs. John M. Hall, after a visit at Manchester-by-the-Sea with Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hall of Boston.

Miss Sperry Is Bride

DEAN AND MRS. WILLARD L. SPERRY of Cambridge and Great Stones, Headington, England, announce the wedding of their daughter, Miss Henrietta Sperry, to Mr. Roy Mickel Wilson, son of Rev. Robert Wilson of Langslide, Glasgow, Scotland, and the late Mrs. Wilson.

The Rev. R. H. Streeter, the provost of the Queens College, who officiated at the wedding of Dean and Mrs. Sperry, performed the ceremony.

The Reverend Wilson, father of the bridegroom, assisted in the ceremony which was read in the chapel of Queens College, Oxford, England.

The bride wore a princess gown of ivory lace and carried a bouquet of lillies. Miss Sheila Wilson, sister of the groom, who was the only bridal attendant, wore a blue taffeta robe de style and carried sweet peas.

Mr. John Wilson was his brother's best man and Mr. Alan Hunt and Mr. John Somers-Cox were the ushers.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the Fellows' Garden of Queens College. Mr. Wilson and his bride will honeymoon in the Austrian Tyrol.

Treasure Sale

Notices are being distributed to remind the summer colonists along the North Shore of the "treasure auction sale" which is to be held on the afternoon of Tuesday, August 20 on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lowell Mason in the Paine enclosure on the ocean side of Pride's Crossing station.

The sale, which is to benefit the Boston Music School Settlement and the Beverly Farms music school, is being sponsored by a large and enthusiastic committee, of which Mrs. Alexander Steinert of Beverly, president of the Boston Music School Settlement, and Mrs. Frederick R. Galacar of Ipswich are the most active members. Mrs. S. Parker Bremer of Dublin, N. H., is a new member of the committee.

Among the additional articles donated for the sale are oil sketches by Mr. George Noyes, a Lunette benitier of S. Anne donated by Mrs. Anna Coleman Ladd, and other gifts of antique and modern glass, linen luncheon and bridge sets, and Venetian and silver salts. A group of debutantes and post-debutantes will serve tea on the veranda.

Socialites In Maine Carnival

MR. AND MRS. JOHN W. MEYERS of Federal Hill Farm in Dedham and Dr. George H. Powers of Beacon street are among the many Bostonians who will participate in the grand parade of the Kennebunk River Club Carnival, which is to be held on Monday evening, August 12.

Governor Louis J. Brann of Maine has been invited to review the parade of nearly two hundred floats on the Kennebunk River. Following the two-hour review, prizes will be awarded for the most beautiful, spectacular and original floats, as well as the finest shore decoration.

Such notables as Booth Tarkington and Kenneth Roberts, the well known authors and Miss Mary Rogers and Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds of the stage will pass judgement on the affair.

Among the prominent summer residents who are planning shore decorations are Mrs. Margaret Deland of Bunker Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Lewis, of Wellesley Professor and Mrs. Thomas Smith of Boston and Miss Grace W. King of Brookline.

FRANCE HARRIES AGITATORS AS STRIKES END

By Associated Press

Paris, Aug. 9—With troops ready but out of sight, the French Government today ordered police forces to clean up agitation centers.

Premier Pierre Laval ordered the prefects of all France's 86 departments to confer with him immediately. It was the first such conference in the history of the French Republic.

A somewhat easier attitude prevailed as the laborers in the government arsenals at Toulon and Brest went back to work and the French Line employes at Le Havre voted to end their strike.

RIOT END SEEN

The object of the prefects' conference was understood to be the development of a more favorable attitude on the part of government employes toward the pay cuts.

Government officials said the riots of the last few days, which reached a climax last night in Toulon, "seemed to be organized disorders" but "unlikely to continue."

A vast network of police was thrown over Toulon's riot scenes and a house-to-house search today brought 40 arrests and the discovery of many wounded.

Police said they seized "a regular arsenal" in one house in Toulon where two wounded were hiding.

The police everywhere were instructed to watch agitators and to be firm but to avoid shooting.

PREMIER STANDS FIRM

Premier Laval refused any compromise in the shipping strike, but the French Line agreed to compensate the sailors for their pay cuts.

The end of the strike enabled the steamship Champlain to sail from Le Havre at 2 p. m.—two days later.

The premier held firmly to his deflation program. He assembled the prefects to ensure uniform application of his program.

Paris had its own little midnight battle outside a Communist meeting, where a score of political adversaries waylaid and beat four Communists. Two were taken to a hospital

U. S., France Fight Britain To Break Radio Monopoly

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

Washington, Aug. 9—The United States and France are engaged together in a bitter battle to break Great Britain's monopoly of transatlantic communications, it was learned definitely and authoritatively.

France has formally requested the United States government that she be made the destination of one of the four wave lengths on which all radiophone conversations are carried on between America and the European continent.

All four wave lengths are now routed direct to London. They give England a complete monopoly of this important branch of communications. The wave lengths are assigned by the United States government to the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and are operated by that $5,000,000,000 corporation.

England rebels at the change.

There has come the intimation that England might cut off all cable service in a vengeful spirit of retaliation for loss of its complete radiophone monopoly. She now has the cable monopoly of cable service from the United States. The cables are operated by Western Union.

Both the army and the navy are agreeable to France's request. Military experts declare that the defense of America requires that the vital communications system to an entire continent should not be segregated to one nation.

The Federal Communications Commission is disposed to approve France's request.

England and A. T. and T. are said to have entered an informal agreement for the joint construction of a new cable at a cost of $15,000,000. This would be for the so-called coaxial telephone service which, it is understood, would monopolize television and the transmission of motion pictures between the continent and the United States.

U. S. TO REVISE JAIL SYSTEM

By Universal Service

Washington, Aug. 9—Declaring existing federal penitentiaries are outmoded and too large for proper discipline, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings announced plans for sweeping revision of Uncle Sam's prison system.

The program provides for erection of federal jails capable of housing from 700 to 800 prisoners each, in widely scattered sections of the country. The first jail, for which plans have been completed, would cost $2,500,000. The attorney general said:

"The War Department has told us we must vacate the Leavenworth penitentiary annex by next July. They are badly in need of it for their own prisoners.

"The only solution is federal jails, scattered throughout the country. Existing prisons are too large, too old fashioned and unwieldy."

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW NATIONAL DIRECTOR

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

Having fun in a serious way are 878 chartered squadrons in the Boston wing of the Junior Birdmen which includes New England and Eastern Canada.

Sometimes the fun isn't so serious when the units get together at camps or hold parties and go to theaters to see aviation pictures.

Sometimes it's athletic fun when the squadrons form ball teams, hockey teams or go on long hikes.

But at all times, it's fun to be an important group in a huge, growing organization dedicated to America's and to the individual's success in the air.

A wealth of information is supplied through the Junior Birdmen columns, the air course written by experts of the U. S. Bureau of Air Commerce exclusively for the Birdmen and the ten handbooks dealing with all phases of aviation and model building. Those who study together, give each other tests and discuss new development, are the ones who get the most knowledge with the least effort and no "grinding."

It's easy to form a squadron and there's plenty of activity to keep it zooming. All you need do is choose four friends besides yourself, get them to join the Birdmen if they are not already members and send in for a beautiful seven-colored charter, enscribed with the names of the members.

With this, commander and captain bars will be sent for your elected officers and a book of rules will tell you how to conduct your meetings in a business-like manner.

Here are some of the weekly reports sent in by captains and commanders:

SQUAD USES HEAT To Fly Model

A model airship without a propeller flew gracefully for a mile at a tremendous height powered by a lighted round ball of straw covered with wax, according to the report of Gerard Chiasson of the Silver Star squadron of South Bathhurst, New Brunswick, Canada. This method is not recommended however, as the high wind caused the model to catch afire.

An orchestra has been formed to play weekly. The commander, Edgar Duclos, and the captain gave explanations of taxying, takeoff and banking of a plane. Three new members, Wilfred Hackey, Stanley Lavigne and Leo Stever were admitted, adding nine points to the squadron's Wing Banner points.

"We asked our members if there was anything they wanted to know about a plane and then looked it up in the Junior Birdmen dictionary handbook."

The above was reported by Louis Vavala, captain of the Italian Grummen Fighters of Fall River.

Ugo Puglia is envied by the rest of his Three Stars Squadron of Somerville, commanded by Guido Novella. He joined the C. C. C. for the summer and is now helping to get ready land for an emergency airport at Fort Devens.

Boston Wing Headquarters, 100 Summer street, Boston, will supply you with a list of the Junior Birdmen Handbooks, with a reprint of the first 16 issues of the U. S. Bureau of Air Commerce lessons (send 2 cents) with membership wings and card and with squadron materials. Join the Junior Birdmen today by sending in the coupon to be found on this page. Then you can form your own squadron.

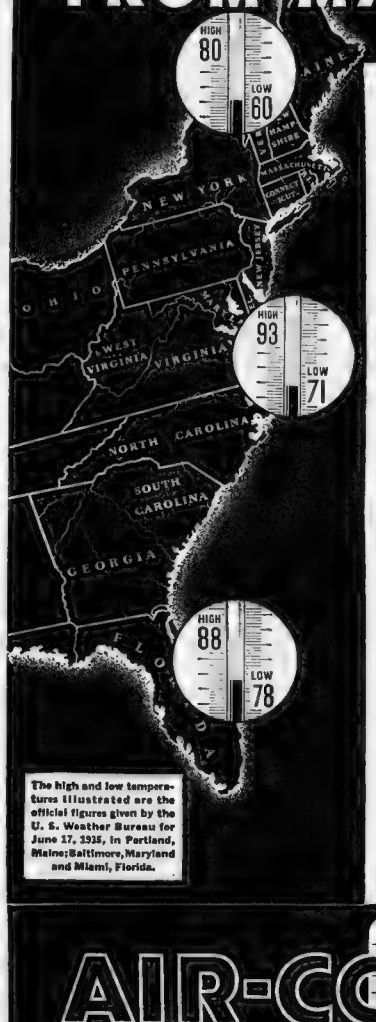
FROM MAINE TO FLORIDA



The high and low temperatures illustrated are the official figures given by the U. S. Weather Bureau for June 17, 1935, in Portland, Maine; Baltimore, Maryland and Miami, Florida.

"AIR-CONDITIONED" AMERICAN GAS

BEATS THERMOMETERS ON THEIR HOME GROUNDS

IT'S no secret that gasoline motors are erratic in performance when you run into humidity and temperature changes. And it's no secret that you do get humidity and temperature changes, daily and monthly, both on short runs in your particular locality and on longer trips.

"AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas beats thermometers on their home grounds. By carefully designing this gasoline to cover the weather variations in each locality during each month of the year, we have succeeded in making a gasoline which will give maximum performance throughout all weather conditions. "AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas gives uniform, dependable performance on either short or long runs. Here's why:

We build into this gasoline some things no other regular gasoline has. We start out with a 100% Pure Petroleum Base. And we keep it pure. No acid is used in our refining operations. And we don't have to add any of the chemicals used in most other regular gasolines.

With the help of our new refinery and modern processes, we have turned out a regular gasoline so new—so modern—so different—that "air-conditioning" is only one of its features.

OTHER GUARANTEED FEATURES!

CLEAN BURNING: 100% Pure Petroleum Base—No Added Chemicals—100% clean burning—no harmful deposits.

GREATER NET POWER: "Air-Conditioned" gasoline plus clean burning guarantees superior performance. Hence, GREATER NET POWER.

HIGHER ANTI-KNOCK: By new processes—without acid treatment—in the world's most modern refinery, we obtain naturally, from 100% Pure Petroleum Base, a higher anti-knock value than other regular gasolines get artificially by the addition of chemicals to bring up anti-knock alone.

MORE MILES: Greater net power and higher anti-knock rating net more miles to the gallon than any other regular gasoline.

"AIR-CONDITION" Your Motor!

Stop at any Yellow and Black American Gas Pump and fill up your tank with "AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas. Then keep your car "air-conditioned" with this amazing new "AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas. Even though it costs us more to produce, it is being sold at regular gas price from Maine to Florida and inland by thousands of American dealers and stations.

This Is Life

by ROBERT E. ROGERS

I can't help hoping that the little man - Ring David Alper - in New York, who was refused admission to Fashion Center in New York because he was in his shirt sleeves, will not in the end make a little trouble for the building management.

I do not know how valid his insistence that he has been allowed in some of the "best buildings" New York will prove as a precedent.

Robert E. Rogers

Will the fact that he was offered an alternative service or employes' elevator, or even alternative stairs, count for anything? Does the fact that an elevator is a free convenience allow the building owners to exclude undesirable persons or dictate the conditions under which it shall be used?

Undoubtedly a drunk could be excluded. And probably a person indecently or improperly dressed. But do shirtsleeves after all come under this category?

Since one of New York's large service clubs has gone publicly on record as favoring a coatless toilet for men in hot weather, New York is a bit hazed up about the question. In Boston, as certain of our local writers have pointed out, it is pretty much of a dead issue.

Whether it is because the east wind may spring up at any moment and make you wish you hadn't left your coat at home, or whether there is a latent and lingering Puritanism hereabouts which makes the shirtsleeve mode seem really an undress, I do not know.

Anyway, Boston is pretty much live-and-let-live in this respect. In Manhattan it has become a major issue, like shorts in Yonkers.

The missus believes that the attitude of the Fashion Center building management is correct.

If men wish to go coatless in summer, she avows, why do not the men tailors and haberdashers deal properly with the situation?

It may be admitted that a man in pants and shirtsleeves is more thoroughly and even decently clothed than most women in an 18-ounce summer costume, sleeveless, backless, and occasionally slipless. But the question is not one of ethics but aesthetics.

Sails in Breeze

There is no charm about the masculine shirt which bulges and spreads in front and purfles in the wind in the rear, like the sails of the Santa Maria under a brisk breeze. The American readymade clothing manufacturer has never caught the British knack of tailoring trousers high, snug and form fitting about the waist.

The American trouser, as worn by the average man—which is to say, the man with the pudgy waist and the incipient paunch—tends to slip and spread and the slightest exertion releases a yard or two of loose shirting to belly in the breeze.

The only alternative is braces (suspenders to you!), which are singularly obtrusive without a coat. Or even without a vest.

Furthermore, she opines, give a man an inch and he will take an ell.

Freedom from coats carries with it a wild desire to discard the necktie, and sometimes, even, to discard the collar, retaining only the gold-washed collar button such as, according to Mr. Dooley, was worn by King Mahsheh of ancient Erin.

No, says the missus, aesthetically the summer man may be comfortable, but he is no sight for sore eyes.

But since the missus has much the same views on the subject of gals who wear beach or boardwalk garb on the city streets, with sunbacks and knee-highs and so forth, she may be called conservative in these matters.

No one who has ever seen a touring German on the Continent will deny this point of view.

The Hollywood shirt widely open over the hairy chest, the short shorts and the length of bushy leg, may be comfortable, but they certainly tend to distract from the beauty of natural scenery or even of public monuments.

True of Fat Man

The same is true of a fat man with a torso full of shrubbery lying sunnyside up on a public beach. And at the extreme of the mode are the Nudists, who are no longer so much a theory as a condition, and a demand raw and unpleasant condition, as Mr. Mantalini would say.

But I do not believe the question is aesthetic. It is utilitarian and will be settled on utilitarian grounds. Until man can do without his gadgets he will stick to coat and vest.

What of his several automatic pens and pencils, his watch—unless he is sensible enough to wear his on the wrist, his stuffed wallet and the hundred stray papers that bulge his inside pockets, his accumulation of paper match folders, his two handkerchiefs, his cigarette case or pipe and tobacco pouch, his loose silver, et cetera?

It has been suggested that he carry a reticule or vanity.

But that will not do. Not because man is vain and fears to appear feminine, but because within half an hour after leaving home he will infallibly lose the works and at one fell swoop find himself bankrupt.

For the bag or purse tucked so firmly under the arm that it is never laid down or lost is a product of years of female conditioning, and it is doubtful whether within our time man can attain that perfection of mindfulness.

PARALYSIS RISE STOPS SCOUT JAMBOREE

Thanks to Ring David Alper of New York, it's up to the courts now to decide if shirtsleeves are or aren't proper masculine garb. Refused admittance to a Fashion Center elevator because he was not wearing a coat, Alper insisted on his "rights" and was arrested, in consequence, for "disorderly conduct."

One thousand small boys in Massachusetts were awaiting jumps in their chests today—and trying to smile.

Perhaps the biggest disappointment any one of them has yet had came when President Roosevelt called off the International Boy Scout Jamboree in Washington because of infantile paralysis epidemic.

But there was one small ray of sunshine penetrating to be salvaged out of the wreckage of the shattered plans.

BOSTON EVENT PLANNED

There will be a local jamboree, Oscar A. Kneisner, Scout executive of the Boston Boy Scout Council said.

Maybe it will even be possible to manage a New England encampment, which would call together 2500 scouts at least, which would enable authorities to have a regular jamboree, although on a smaller scale.

Scouts from England, France, Spain, South America and many other foreign countries are already on the way here to attend what is comparable in Boy Scout matters to a gathering of the clan in Scotland.

MANY HEARTS SADDENED

Knowing what a mammoth affair was in motion, President Roosevelt made his announcement, the announcement which broke the hearts of 35 00 small boys, only after a long conference.

He consulted Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming of the Public Health Service, Dr. James West, chief Scout executive, and District Commissioner George Allen.

They told him that the epidemic was on the fringe of an infantile epidemic area which was rapidly approaching.

Perhaps a strong factor in the final decision was the fact that President Roosevelt is the nation's best known infantile paralysis victim, suffering the disease 14 years ago.

MOSQUITO BITE Fatal to Boy, 7

New York, Aug. 9—A mosquito bite caused the death of seven-year-old Edmund Hammell.

Infection settled into blood poisoning four days ago when the mosquito's sting remained in the lad's leg. He was taken to the hospital the following day, running a high temperature. A blood transfusion was necessary, but impossible because of the boy's fever which lasted until he died.

AUSTEN LAKE

Outboard Oddities

Do Basin Buzzing

For Rich Stakes

THOSE TYPOGRAPHICAL TWINS, the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, are promoting an educational uproar in the Charles river basin tomorrow, when 100 little flea-boats with egg-beater engines and matchbox hulls, will bust Back Bay's cathedral calm and churn the day away in a form of motored hysterics.

Austen Lake

I have ridden one of these outboard oddities only once, and then in a misguided moment on the placid waters of Tampa Bay, when its impish owner shoehorned me into its monkey seat and spun the flywheel with a length of clothesline.

Well sir! For the better part of fifteen minutes I leap-frogged the ripples of that barracuda infested bay with mingled sensation of riding a rodeo calf in a blizzard of soapsuds and of skinning down a ski chute in a wash kettle.

It is risky business! Once on Lake Skaneateles near Syracuse, I watched a pretty miss named Loretta Turnbull do an accidental n'gup while going 50 miles an hour. The lass went ragdolling over the water like she was shot from a cannon, and had to have a rivet fitted in her neck.

Water ceases to be soft, yielding liquid at that speed, and feels like being bounced out of a barroom on a concrete sidewalk with every innocent little wave hitting you like the kick of a cow.

Yet they tell me that the girls and boys who follow the outboard regattas like gypsies trailing country carnivals, do it for the sake of the tongue tickles and stomach shudders.

They Dynamite Their Steeds

THERE ARE PROFESSIONALS, too, who traipse after these water circuses, like money-golfers chase tournament purses during the Southern winter season.

These range from grizzled old stagers like Bob Boles, with bulges of eating tobacco in their cheeks, to fuzz-faced kids like Bob Flagg, men who never quite lose the odor of methanol about their persons any more than a race horse trainer quite parts from the perfume of stable ammonia.

A horse jockey would get a life sentence for doing what the flea-boat jockeys do. The boat jockeys needle their steeds with a doped mixture of alcohol, benzine and nitro-glycerine which sends the boats into a spasm of hysterics so that, at top speed, only their propellors are in the water and their motor sounds like the amplified throbs of a million hornet hums.

The real heart flutters come while taking the turns. You don't sit upright on your hay-cushion like your grandmother knitting a tea cozy and let the sliver nose around the bend.

You teeter gently sidewise, coaxing the boat up on its hip and swallow your heart lest it scoop kelp from the river bottom.

So, if you like riding a haywagon at fifty miles an hour over rutted country roads, you'll like outboard motor boating. Otherwise, you can plug cotton in your ears, and be among the thousands of American and Advertiser guests who will swarm the basin rails.

Marshall's Coming Education

BEING A HEADLONG TYPE, George P. Marshall, the Washington washerman who wishes to marry the Braves, says, "We are going to get good players and rebuild the club."

While George cannot be shot for good intentions, the correct answer is, "Who, where and how?"

If he successfully woos C. F. Adams' stepchild, Marshall will find that mere millions cannot buy pennants. If they could Tom Yawkey would have bought a whole series of them for his Red Sox.

You don't thumb your underlip and say, "Well, I need a catcher, a second baseman and a couple of pitchers," and then go out to the minor league junk heaps and find perfect refits for your machine.

You can pay fancy prices for bush league heroes, only to have them spoil on your hands and become dumb, dull and inferior. If you dig up some likely buck, who has scorched a leaky roof league, you find that he is pledged to some rival club, which is keeping him pickled for future use.

It is, as Judge Emil Fuchs, who bought some of the best and the worst, discovered, a perishable business whose tap roots often are set in the soil of heartbreak.

What it takes is infinite pains, intimate baseball contacts, a sound knowledge of baseball values, a gambler's courage and plenty of 10-pound notes.

Ring Surrenders

IN JOE LOUIS' LAST TWO FIGHTS his opponents, both veterans of the ring wars, wound up on the heel of their trunks, pleading through slashed lips, please, to be sheltered from further battering.

King Levinsky did it in Chicago on Wednesday night while crouching under the ring ropes. And Primo Carnera mumbled a surrender on last June 25 in New York, squatting on his stout hams like a bewildered child.

There was a drool of crimson on his furry chest that looked like a tomato-colored slit, and there was a wild, hunted look in his eyes as he asked to be shown to a comfortable seat.

Old school pugs have a lofty contempt for fighters who resign when the punishment dose is too big. They say, rather than suffer the stigma of quitting, a game man will stay upright with his senses swimming and his lights dimmed.

I recall how Mickey Walker stayed swaying and reeling under Max Schmeling's sledging. Though his features were crumpled in a crimson smear, and his eyes were sealed shut, he swung groggy punches at a chin he could not see, and spurned lowering himself to the floor.

He chose to stay upright as a gruesome chopping block until Jack Kearns sent a towel slithering through the ropes as a token of submission.

And old Pauline Uzcudun, the clumsy Basque who was beaten often, but only once touched his tights to the resin, though he was slugged about his pimply body with his ears and eyes crumped. But he kept his gold teeth gleaming in a friendly grin and never went down but once.

I am confused about this and wonder whether gameness is a virtue when a man is being brutalized beyond his powers to resist. And I wonder whether he is being fair to the customers in not allowing himself to be hurt some more for their money.

This is on the theory that the original purpose of man-to-man fighting was in the martial furies of the jungle apes, with the idea to inflict much bodily harm.

In this enlightened age the primitive business has been carried to commercial heights, with doctors at the ringside to halt the sticking when, in their opinion, there is danger of rendering a combatant permanently silly. Not an instant before. And the customers attend with the knowledge that, if fortune is kind, somebody will get hurt.

Fred Jacoby, professional outboard speed champion, tunes his small craft for the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser races on the Charles tomorrow and Sunday. Jacoby won the Albany to New York marathon race this year. A gathering of 100,000 is expected at the regatta.

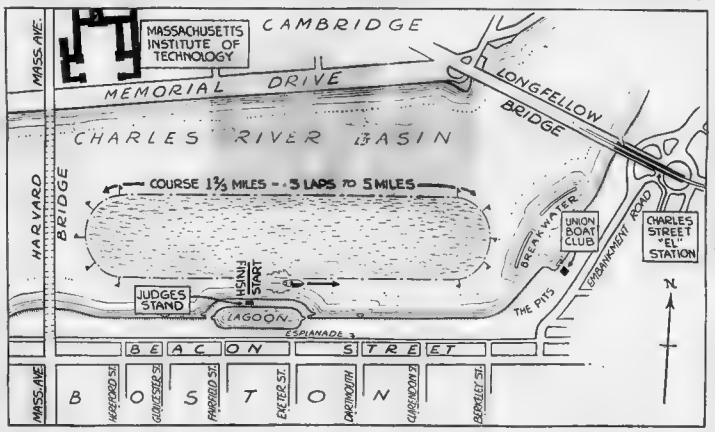
BASIN COURSE WHICH SPEEDBOATS WILL TRAVERSE



Map shows the location, in the Charles river basin, of the course over which outboard motorboat speed kings will race tomorrow and Sunday in the great regatta sponsored by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser. The races can be viewed advantageously either from Memorial Drive, Cambridge, or from the Charles river esplanade between the Harvard bridge (Massachusetts avenue) and the Longfellow bridge (Cambridge street). Both Memorial Drive and the Esplanade are easily reached from adjacent sections of Cambridge and Boston or from Auto Routes 2, 2A, and C28 which cross the bridges.

Speedboats Await Starting Gun

By Ed Schrittziesser

Their motors primed with high explosives, and their racing craft polished to a cellophane slickness, America's most famous outboard speedboat pilots converged on Boston today.

In trucks and trailers arrived elaborate racing outfits which tomorrow and Sunday will thunder up and down the Charles River Basin in the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser regatta.

The entry list this morning had soared to 85, making the fleet the largest in the East this season. Later more were expected to send the total well past the century mark.

Down on the shores of the Basin, officials of the Central New England Regatta Association, all everything in readiness for the starting gun which will send on the "flying shoreline" at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

12 EVENTS

Today the high powered [illegible] motors were silent as mechanics and drivers went through the last details of tuning the tricky little speedsters to the last pitch of racing perfection.

Not until 9:30 tomorrow morning when all but sluggards should have completed their beauty sleeps will the full-throated roar from a hundred exhausts shatter the Back Bay calm.

Twelve events are on tomorrow's program, a complete schedule of races for Classes A and C, both amateur and professional. Sunday will see Classes B and F and the 225 inboard boats.

Midget races featured by a dashing appearance of girl drivers including Mary Chapman of New York, Mollie Tyson of New Jersey, Maryland Codd of Baltimore and Audrey Orear of Albany, all will be run tomorrow.

Class A, opening event on the program, has proved one of the most popular events of the regatta. At least ten amateurs and probably 15 professionals will send their little craft with tiny but speedy engines sputtering awfully around the Basin.

Amateur ranks in Class A will include such featured drivers as Clinton Ferguson of Waban, schoolboy champion, and Gar Wood, Jr., of Detroit, Ferguson's chief rival last month at Worcester.

Both are sons of speed boat leaders, the elder Ferguson being the commodore of the Central New England Regatta Association in charge of the races here, and the son of Gar Wood, internationally known for his world record victories with Miss America. A new entry today is Jack Scarbrough of Harwichport.

Entered in the professional division of Class A are practically all the best speed pilots in the eastern half of the nation.

HUDSON WINNER

Fred Jacoby, Jr., owner of the Hudson River marathon this year, will be here and will [illegible] one who beat [illegible] a special open race at Long Point, N. Y., a few weeks ago. And Jerry Tomei, former [illegible] champion who is a Lowell student, [illegible] in fact, in every outboard [illegible] regatta.

Other pilots [illegible] complete list of [illegible] of this year will be Burton Sleacie, Framingham veteran; Carl Sawyer of Medford and Adelbert Bauer of Fitzgerald and Edward W. Robinson of Phoenixville, Pa.

After the A and midget classes have smothered the Basin waters to foam, the even higher powered class C motors will show their stuff. Three heats for professionals and two for amateurs will [illegible] the day's program.

Included of the C amateurs will be [illegible] Driscoll, who is coming [illegible] way from Victoria, B. C., for the Boston-Advertiser regatta. [illegible] is racing in this class [illegible] Charles Nichols, Paul [illegible] H. Patterson, Jr., all of New York.

Class C in the professional division will see many of the A class stars in competition again, with

Ireland Forever

TUCKERMAN OFF FOR ERIN TOMORROW | WOULD LIKE TO REMAIN THERE

By Walter Kiley

"The Promised Land" claims Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., speaking of Ireland's rural countryside.

"The greatest racing center in the world, a land rich for breeding purposes and the ideal place for your tired business man to settle down and enjoy the fruits of hard-earned labor," Tuckerman says.

And so Suffolk Downs' representative in the steward stand area said for "Beetive," royal estate in the heart of Navan County, Meath the spot where Grand National and Derby winners have been nourished to maturity for to, these many years.

Tomorrow morning Tuckerman will be on the high seas, taking his first vacation in three years, his mind content with the successful completion of his life-long ambition to bring the "sport of kings" to Boston.

To Come Home in September

It was Tuckerman, you know, who started the ball a-rolling to legalize racing in Massachusetts.

Together with John R. Macomber and other prominent members of the Eastern Horse Club which promoted yearly meets at The Country Club and Raceland in Framingham, Tuckerman spent freely of his time and unselfishly of his devotion, overcoming tremendous obstacles to sell the governing bodies of the state and the voting men and women as well the racing project.

How well he succeeded and how far his fondest hopes have been exceeded is evidenced in the grand racing year which Suffolk Downs has met during the inaugural meeting.

"And now," he continues, "I am off for a much-needed rest. My wife and family, Phyllis, aged 17, and our two sons, Herbert and Richard (Dickie), 14, are already over there. I will come home with them later in September.

"Mr. Macomber, Charlie Bird and myself have a wonderful farm of 125 acres in Meath. We have cattle and sheep and a few head of promising horses in one of nature's beauty spots, just 28 miles out of Dublin.

Lavin Formerly Worked in Walpole

"Dan O'Mahoney can tell you about it. He has tramped the countryside ever since childhood and today Danno is considered one of the greatest of the long line of "Kings" which Ireland boasts.

"Tom Lavin is our superintendent, a grand fellow who knows every inch of hunting land and every bit of brush where the winged folk hide out against man. He was foreman of the teamsters for Bird and Son in Walpole in the days of horse-drawn trucks.

"The Irish people over there, simple and kindly, are grand. I have never before seen their like, always laughing and joking, getting the most out of life and taking fortune as they find it, perfectly satisfied.

"Within miles of our farm is the finest breeding land the world over, rich, lush rolling countryside, ever green and fresh and giving the jaded visitor a new lease on life.

"A fellow couldn't ask for more than just to be able to spend the rest of his days there."

YANKEES NEED PEPPER BOX

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 9—Back on the big time again, Blondy Ryan is getting his vocal chords in shape to root the New York Yankees out of the baseball doldrums and into the American League pennant.

Blondy is the boy who literally talked the Giants into the 1921 World's Series. He went around shouting "They can't beat us" so often and so loudly that the other Giants finally came to believe it. They snapped out of it and won the pennant.

Blondy talked himself hoarse in 1934, but the deck was stacked against the Giants and Bill Terry sent him down the river to Philadelphia in part payment for Dick Bartell. Even Blondy admits there was little about the Phillies to inspire cheers.

He yelled his head off at the start, but the hapless Phils got no better rapidly and soon the famous Egan war songs, as well as his batting average, went into almost total eclipse.

Jimmy Wilson exiled him to the International League. Instead, Blondy packed up and went home. Joe McCarthy heard about it, recalling what the tow-headed Irishman had done for the Giants, McCarthy figured it might be worth $7500 to see if he couldn't talk the skidding Yankees back into winning form. So he bought him for the waiver price.

Never Quits

In the Yankee clubhouse today Blondy, once more exuding all his old-time pepper, promised to do his best.

"I couldn't do much conscientious hollering in Philadelphia," he said, "and my pipes are a bit rusty from that and the month's lay-off. But I'm getting my technique back and if Mr. McCarthy decides to put me in there, I'll juggle a few verbs and adverbs around in my throat and let them have both barrels.

"I still can holler and I still can play ball. 'Never give up,' is my motto. I'll soon have the other Yanks mumbling that in their sleep.

"It's great to be back in the majors. When the Phillies sent me to Baltimore, I determined I'd go home and study law. I was just taking my wife home from a Syracuse hospital when I got the wire telling me to report to the Yankees. That rescued the two of us. Another chance in New York was too good to pass up."

HAPPY GO BEST AT SUFFOLK DOWNS

HOGAN May Go to CUBS

GIANTS LEAD SLASHED

By Joe Cashman

One of these fine afternoons, Jack Wilson probably will be nominated to start a game for the Red Sox.

The Coast youngster deserves a chance after the several fine relief performances he has turned in since being recalled from Syracuse.

There's a possibility that Large Francis Hogan will catch on with the Chicago Cubs. With Leo Gabby" Hartnett expected to be out for a month with injuries, Manager Charlie Grim would have everything to gain and nothing to lose by taking on 'Shanty'.

Wesley Ferrell and "Lefty" Grove will reveal all their pitching tricks to the eyes of the movie camera under the direction of Umpire George Moriarty at Fenway Park tomorrow.

The pictures of the Sox aces in action will be among the feature scenes of the second edition of the American League's "Play Ball" flicker.

Third place is now but two games away from our Red Sox, the White Sox having taken it on the chin from the pace-setting Tigers on the first afternoon of the Crowmen's two-day wait for the arrival of the Senators on the morrow.

General Alvin Crowder, whom the Tigers saved from the minors last summer, stopped the Pale Hose for his 13th victory of the campaign. The win increased the Bengals' lead over the second-place Yankees to five full games.

The Yanks had another ninth-inning collapse and lost to the Athletics as Lou Gehrig played his 1600th game and smashed out his 18th homer of the season.

The Macks trailing by a run entering the final frame, put over four tallies to win. Every one of the A's contributed at least one safety to a 16-hit attack.

The National League race tightened up considerably when the Giants dropped a doubleheader to the lowly Phils and the Cubs handed the Pirates a walloping.

The Terrymen now lead the Windy City entry by only two games. The world champion Cardinals are still very dangerous from a point only 3½ games away from the attic.

The Quakers beat the Giants' two pitching prides, Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher. Our old pal, "Bucky" Walters, beat Childe Harold, while the classy Davis bested King Carl, holding the New Yorkers scoreless until the ninth.

The Cubs and Cards open a series today. The Giants have a fine chance to profit by the throat-cutting in Chicago if they can snap out of it in Philly.

Lem Solters' 17th home run helped the Red Sox no little. It gave the Browns the nightcap and an even break on the day with the Indians, who remain 2½ games back of the fourth-place Cronimen.

Schmeling Fears Tax Collector

Universal Service Special Cable

Berlin, Aug. 9—Not the dynamite-packed fists of Joe Louis but the American tax collector had Max Schmeling doubtful today as to when he will meet the Brown Bomber.

Germany's heavyweight top, former world champion, professed not to be alarmed by Louis' sensational first-round knockout of Kingfish Levinsky. He said:

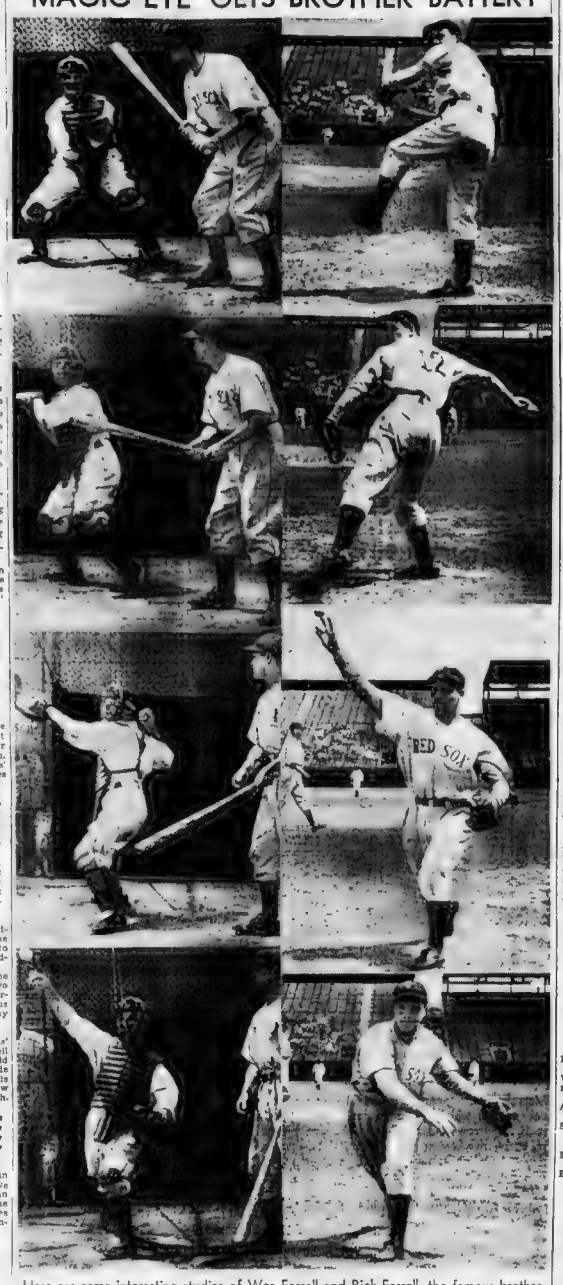
"Louis must be a good man, judging from reports of the fight, although Levinsky, like Carnera, is not a first-class man. Neusel kayoed Levinsky two years ago, and Baer did the same trick recently.

"If you offer to box Louis still stands, but I must get at least $150,000, with the promoters paying the taxes.

"You will admit I could not have great interest in going to America if I had to pay forty per cent of the purse in taxes, in addition to giving Joe Jacobs thirty per cent. This wouldn't leave much left of a $100,000 purse.

"I have not yet received confirmation of a bout between Louis and Max Baer, so I think Joe Jacobs must still be negotiating to match me with Louis."

'MAGIC EYE' GETS BROTHER BATTERY



Here are some interesting studies of Wes Ferrell and Rick Ferrell, the famous brother combination of the Red Sox, caught in action while acting as a battery in a Fenway workout. Here we find Wes, leading winner among twirlers in both leagues, as he blazes across his spectacular delivery. Rick is behind the plate catching the ball and sending it back. The batter in the photos with Rick Ferrell is none other than Joe Cronin, who provided the biggest thrill of the season when he hit a home run in the ninth inning with two on to beat the Yankees Wednesday.

DANNO Downs Browning WITH 'WHIP'

Toronto, Aug. 9—Danno O'Mahoney, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, tossed another challenger, Hidowned Jim Browning, the Missourian, for the only fall in a one-hour limit match here.

O'Mahoney weighed 222 pounds 17 less than Browning, who scaled 239, but he managed to toss the Verona, Mo., veteran after 40 minutes and 52 seconds of heaving with his highly publicized "Irish whip."

Midwestern Champ Here for American Races

Breezing into town all the way from Kansas City to enter the American-Advertiser outboard motorboat regatta today came Frank Davis, amateur driver of the fast Miss Kansas City.

Davis, who will race here in Classes B, C and F, won the Hearst Herald-Examiner Gold Cup in Class B at the Chicago World's Fair last year.

He also has held the midwestern Class B competition speed record for the last three years.

MARKS Ships 11 for 'EASY MARKS'

Harry Hart, trainer of Lee J. Marks' Lamar stock farm horses, is shipping 11 more runners to New England from Lexington. The newcomers are all young; many have not faced the barrier.

Saratoga Springs has plenty of horses for his meeting, as well as an oversupply of jockeys. All 1500 stalls are filled. Allowing for feed and tack rooms, this would mean about 1200 horses on hand. The [illegible] has owned 300

FEATURE RACE WIDE OPEN

Final Day of Meet

By Dave Wilson

(Selections made for fast track)

BEST BET—HAPPY GO

Suffolk Downs, Aug. 9—Topped by the initial running of the $5000 Lexington-Concord Handicap, an interesting eight-race card has been arranged by the Eastern Racing Association for its final day's racing.

Nine three-year-olds have been accepted in the feature and the race shapes up as a wide open affair with all performers appearing to have a fine chance to take down this rich prize.

In the secondary attraction of the afternoon, the Brandon Hall Purse, seven of the star sprinters in these parts will measure strides. Happy Go, a speedy son of Happy Argo, shapes up as the most enticing hazard of the day. This speedster is at the peak of his form, and it will take a mighty good horse to show him the way, taking a line from recent endeavors at this oval.

FIRST—SIGHTING BAR, CASH BOOK, DR. TRAPROCK

SIGHTING BAR, a winner of his last start over about the same sort of opposition he encounters in the opener looks like a repeater. CASH BOOK, one that he beat by half length last out, shapes up the principal factor. DR. TRAPROCK is at his tops and must not be overlooked.

SECOND—CHILIAD, CHAIN, HIGH HAND 2nd

CHILIAD should have no trouble outstaying the bad lot in the six furlongs of the second. I am very high on her chances. CHAIN is a steady going veteran which will have HIGH HAND 2nd to beat for the place. The latter is extremely partial to this track and rates a fine chance.

THIRD—SOCIAL CLIMBER, HIDDEN LORE, PATCHEYE

SOCIAL CLIMBER, going great guns at this point, deserves the call over the large field of platers in this mile and a sixteenth test. Needs only to run back to present endeavors to account for this purse. HIDDEN LORE came o life the other day, running gamely and well all the way. This well-bred plater may not be easy to stop. PATCHEYE and BRIGHT BIRD are next best.

FOURTH—GREAT HASTE, QUICK, THE HEATHEN

GREAT HASTE appears to have a strangle hold on the main money in the six furlongs of the fourth. The son of Haste did not do badly the other day in his try behind Gold Step. QUICK and THE HEATHEN are the ones that may offer the most contention.

FIFTH—HARDWARE, HAPPY HELEN, CANDIMATE

HARDWARE, right on his recent corking effort behind Advisin Anna at this oval, shapes up superior to the field in the Lexington-Concord Handicap. HAPPY HELEN, improving with each start, appears the one that they will have to beat. CANDIMATE, vastly improved performer, has won his last two in smart fashion, and there is no telling how good he is at present.

SIXTH—HAPPY GO, SGT. BYRNE, LADFIELD

HAPPY GO will have SGT. BYRNE for his principal rival in the sixth. The latter is one of the fleetest sprinters in these parts, but his inside position at th epos may hamper his chances. LADFIELD has few superiors sprining or route running. He is in the "pink," as his form over this oval shows.

SEVENTH—FAKE, LITTLE DINAH, CHEWAWA

FAKE holds the foot to take a long lead on the field in the mile and 70 yards of the seventh. Under 103 pounds she should fairly fly and stay in front the entire distance. LITTLE DINAH lost a close decision to Single Ragan last out. She is the one to fear. CHEWAWA and SINGLE RAGAN figure best of the others named to go.

EIGHTH—CENTER LANE, BOOCAP, TRUE CHARM

CENTER LANE, a well-bred veteran, turned in a clever race for a plater when he stepped a mile and furlong in 1:52, to win his last start. Will have four pounds less to pack in the final, and meets a field of about the same caliber. BOOCAP holds a touch of class and is a hard-hitting mare. She is strictly the one to beat, with TRUE CHARM fancied for the show award.

Mr. Boston

100,000 To See Regatta

By JACK CONWAY

SPEAKING of news: I look for the greatest crowd that ever attended a sporting event in Boston when the stupendous outboard and inboard motor regatta is staged in the Charles River Basin tomorrow and Sunday.

Upwards of 100,000 persons will witness this classic which will be sponsored by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Mr. Boston

Gar Wood, Jr., and every other famous driver will compete. It is expected that many records will be shattered as the world's leading drivers battle for the money prizes and trophies.

Outboard and inboard motor racing furnishes plenty of thrills. This sport is even more exciting than automobile racing, horse racing or a Joe Cronin home run in the ninth inning.

Everybody is welcome at the Charles River Basin tomorrow and on Sunday.

This splendid regatta is offered to you without cost. The Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser are spending thousands of dollars so that you may have the best in outboard and inboard motor racing.

I'll be seeing you at the Charles River Basin tomorrow and on Sunday.

JOE LOUIS

I DON'T think there is a fighter in the world who can defeat Joe Louis. The "Brown Bomber" will battle Max Baer in September and Jimmy Braddock next June. Unless he meets with an unexpected reverse, Louis should be the next champion.

Baer should give Louis his most severe ring test. You cannot judge Max on his showing against Jimmy Braddock. He fought a miserable battle against the new champion. He tin canned for three rounds, and then when he went out to score a knockout he was unable to do so.

Baer's hands were sore and bothered him a great deal. The chief trouble with his work was due to lack of condition. He had taken things easy for a year, and wasn't tough enough to travel 15 rounds at top speed.

Max was dead tired at the end of five rounds, and was thinking more of going the distance than he was of stopping Braddock.

Braddock didn't permit Baer to clown. Max clowns when he gets tired. He likes to see his opponent stand off and laugh at his foolish antics.

Braddock had suffered too much to be amused by Baer. When the latter would try to clown, Jimmy would step in and punch him around. This made Baer even more tired.

If Baer is to lick Louis, he must get down to the serious business of training. He must forget night clubs and gay parties and follow the tedious grind of the training camp.

You cannot rate Baer off his fight with Braddock. Anybody who was good enough to knock out Ernie Schaaf, Max Schmeling and Primo Carnera is a first class heavyweight.

I think even Baer realizes he will have to train for Louis. If Max gets himself into first class condition, he will make the "Brown Bomber" realize he is in a real fight.

KINGFISH

NOW THAT Levinsky has been knocked out by Louis, he won't receive any further consideration from top flight heavyweights. Max Baer previously chilled Levinsky.

The Kingfish has been a colorful ring character. He has furnished boxing fans with numerous laughs and thrills. With all of his faults, Levinsky was a first class socker.

He launched Jack Dempsey into retirement, while he had Jack Sharkey and Tommy Loughran on the floor.

Levinsky got a good payoff. His share of the receipts of his bout with Louis amounted to $51,000. Levinsky should end up with $15,000 when he pays off his management and the expenses in connection with his training. He will at least have enough money to buy a new fish stall.

'GANSETT DINNER

BILLY AMES, representing Walter O'Hara, tossed a dinner for the turf writers at the Lenox Hotel as part of the ballyhoo in connection with the opening of Narragansett Park on next Monday.

Ames stated that every stall at Narragansett Park has been reserved and that there will be better racing and larger crowds than in the past. This means new records.

Dave Wilson, New England's leading handicapper, will move into the Pawtucket track Saturday morning.

20,000 ELKS OUT TODAY

By Walter Kiley

The Elks' Purse, a six furlong sprint for three-year-olds and up, tops today's card of races at Suffolk Downs, which, in deference to the 20,000 or more members of the order expected in attendance, has been designated as Elks' Day.

The Elks are slated to swell the receipts of the meeting, topping even Wednesday's great mutuels handle of more than $475,000 and the Thursday mark of $446,553, exceptional handles which have left even the most optimistic sponsors of the meeting gaping in astonishment.

Eight race cards are in order both today and tomorrow, and a continuance of the remarkable orgy of betting which has characterized the last two weeks at the Downs should ring the register up near the 11 million dollar mark before the curtain comes to its grand finale tomorrow evening.

The Elks' Cup will be presented the winner of today's feature event B. P. O. E. from every section of the state and their families, all guests of the management, should add just one more dash of color to perhaps the greatest week of horse racing in the history of New England sport.

Moane Keala, Chief's Pride Caerleon and many others well acquainted with winning plaudits have been named for today's feature.

Moane Keala an old New England favorite, will be ridden by Ira Hanford, the daring youngster who in the short space of two weeks has become the darling of Boston's race goers.

Many of Suffolk's leading stables have already hit out for Narragansett and Saratoga.

But there are plenty left to make the Saturday card outstanding, featured as it is by the Lexington-Concord Handicap, a race for three-year olds.

There is no accurate indication of tomorrow s crowd Two weeks ago the estimate was 53,000 Last Saturday 58,000 made the day a gain one

Tomorrow, with continuance of the ideal weather of the past week, it is no far stretch of the imagination to visualize 60,000 or more concluding Boston's first race meeting in a blaze of glory which may see all outside records for this section of the country tossed into the discard.

WILSON Picks FOUR

Dave Wilson, Boston Evening American handicapper, continues to set the pace for the other selectors.

Wilson selected four winners yesterday at Suffolk Downs, while his other choices placed in the money.

High Delight, Wilson's Best Bet, won the eighth, paying $3.60. Other winners included Aileen C, $5; Prefer, $6.60, and Advising Anna, $3.

Wilson's Daily Double combination clicked on top with the pair winning to reward its backers with $15.40 for the $2 investment.

Wilson's Feed Box Special listed Advising Anna to win the fourth and win she did

JEWISH Paper Urges BOYCOTT

By Universal Service

New York, Aug. 9—In an editorial in today's issue, the American Hebrew Jewish Tribune joins with the Catholic publication, The Commonweal and the Protestant paper The Christian Herald, in a demand for a boycott of the 1936 Olympic Games if they are held in Berlin.

In addition to demanding the boycott the publication also publishes a denunciation of Avery Brundage president of the American Olympic committee for favoring American participation and for saying:

"So far we have had no reports whatsoever, official or otherwise, that Germany has failed to give Jewish athletes a fair plan to qualify for the Olympic Games."

In the editorial, the publication points out that many newspapers throughout the United States have advocated non-participation of America in the Berlin Olympics in 1936. The editorial continues:

"The fusillada of German persecution seeks to overcome this opposition by a bombardment of promises and pledges, big words and effects galore prove the emptiness of these assurances and despite the ostrich attitude of Mr. Brundage on behalf of the American Olympic committee, the decision to participate will be reconsidered next December by the American Athletic Union."

OUTBOARD Regatta Opens TOMORROW

the addition of several newcomers such as Al Barzee of New Haven and Mulford Scull of Ventnor, N. J.

Racing will stop by 6.45 p. m., and no boats will be operated on the Basin again until 1 p. m Sunday

TIME CLOCK

Engineers today were completing a loudspeaker system which will keep the thousands of spectators in constant touch with the regatta.

Broadcasting the progress of each contest and its result will be Phelps Ingersoll of Middleton, Conn., nationally known expert, through a speaker located behind the judges' stand, at the pits where the boats are stored and at intervals along the Boston shore.

Telephones will also connect the judges' booth with the pits so that drivers may be warned of approaching races.

Above the judges' stand a platform has been erected on which the starters will signal the speeding racers. Five minutes before each scheduled start a gun will be fired and a red flag displayed

With one minute to go a white flag will take the place of the red one, and the big starting clock will commence to revolve.

This clock, four feet across the face so that it may be seen by the drivers at a distance, is marked off into seconds and shows the time remaining before the starting gun.

Drivers start as soon as possible after the gun is fired; if they start too early they have to go back and recross the line, or be disqualified

Boxing Results

North Adams—Joe Vignale, New York, outpointed Dave Grande, Albany, 10 rounds; Elmer Cyrenne, Schenectady, defeated Steve Salek, Lowell, eight rounds.

GIANTS, CUBS, CARDS IN MERRY BATTLE

EACH Capable of WINNING

WE'LL WIN, SAYS CARDS

By Bill Corum

New York, Aug. 9—The pennant contenders in the National League thi year are like a pretty lady with a lot of handsome suitors. They can't seem to make up their minds.

At least two dozen times in the current season, Mr. William Harold Terry and his Giants have appeared to have the championship all but in their hip pocket and twice they have tossed it back into the ring for further competition.

On another occasion the Cubs, Cardinals and Giants were so closely bunched that a fan could have saved the expense of admission by watching with a fixed telescope.

RICKEY LOYAL

After which, I suppose, the Chicago Cubs, who have given a fine imitation of a team about to go into a clinch, will show what is left of them in the end just as they always do.

Now almost all sorts of guessing can be indulged in as to which season ends in September so that one of these three clubs soon will have the pennant for its own, whether it want it or not.

Mr. Branch Rickey, the moving spirit and master mind of the Cards was among the few present in Chicago for the Tuesday-Wednesday what-was-it, and I'm convinced that the fortunate team will again be his red bird.

"We'll win again sure," said Rickey. "We've got the best team in baseball and they'll never be able to throw us for a loss twice in a row.

"I'll admit that we should be in front now. But one of those long winning streaks, such as we had just before the Giants came to St. Louis, has to end some time, and it was our misfortune to have our string snap four games too soon.

GIANTS SLIP

"Such a break almost inevitably brings a reaction and our case was no exception. For 10 days we played bad baseball. Just as bad as we had been playing good during our winning spurt. But not for so long.

"That's the measure of a great team. It can snap back when it has to. We're back on the right road again, and this time we'll not stop until we're on top. And once on top this late in the season . . . well, then, let 'em catch us if they can."

It goes without saying that Mr. Rickey's opinions are completely prejudiced, and I'm not and his Giants likely will be.

Never . . . ity and his players must know that they can't go on dropping doubleheaders to the likes of Philadelphia and save this pennant race has twice seemed so surely theirs.

Max Baer Assures Joe Of Surprise

By International News Service

Long Beach, N. J., Aug. 9—Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, who is slated to [illegible] opposed . . . with . . . regarding the destructive [illegible] Detroit's brown bomber:

"I'll guarantee one thing," the talkative one declared, "Louis will get the surprise of his life when he gets into that ring with me."

Scheduled to meet Louis sometime in September either in Chicago or New York, Baer also revealed that he has in mind something he intends to do is to buy himself a new Duesenberg automobile.

The ex-champ has confounded even his closest adherents by maintaining a rigid training schedule the past two weeks, last night he retired at 8 o'clock.

New York, Aug. 9—Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., senior U. women's tennis champion for the past three years, will defend against Helen Wills Moody in the Wimbledon championship, it has been named by the American Wightman cup committee for the matches again Britain's foremost women players at Forest Hills, L. I., August 31 and 1-2.

Mrs. Moody, who retained her world title by defeating Miss Jacobs at Wimbledon in the July English lawn tennis championships, is not on the committee's list, although it would enter the national championships this year, she would not be available for the Wightman cup play.

Consequently, Mrs. Moody's name was not on the list when the United States Lawn Tennis Association named Miss Jacobs as number one singles player for the United States against the British girls. Other members of the U. S. team are:

Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Brookline, Mass., Carolin Babcock of Los Angeles, Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of New York, Mrs. Ethel Burkhardt Arnold of San Francisco and Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn of Philadelphia complete the team.

The British girls, who arrived in New York this week, are Dorothy Round, Katherine Stammers, Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King, Freda James, Nancy Lyle and Evelyn Dearman.

DERBY Night at TAUNTON

Taunton, Aug. 9—Tonight is Derby Night at the Taunton dog track.

Derby Night at Taunton means that eight of the fastest racing greyhounds in the United States, bracketed in the Derby final after proving their class in a series of eliminations, will clash over the long three-eighth-mile route with the track championship going to the winner.

The running of this Taunton Gold Cup Derby will be the only official three-eighth-mile title race in the state this season.

1—Just Allie	5—Sweet Player
2—Ridge Hand	6—Tiptop
3—My Player	7—Just Me
4—My Daddy	8—Wandering Sail

There is the Derby lineup by post positions of the eight dogs which have proved their long distance running ability over the Derby three-eighth mile, the longest route in the modern greyhounds race.

My Daddy, kingpin of the J. E. Miles Kennels, remains the heavy pre-Derby favorite. His brilliant and record-breaking victory in the final semi-final race on Wednesday night added to this prestige.

LU BARIENT CLASS OF TROTTERS

By Ed Cogswell

BEST BET—LU BARIENT

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., Aug. 9—Lu Barient, with the skillful handling of Harry Brusie, will not have any bother in beating the free-for-all trotters here this afternoon.

TRACEY HANOVER—DILLON HALL—PRINCE DALE

FIRST, FOURTH AND EIGHTH RACES—Three-year-old pace, purse $800. "The Lawrence Daily Eagle."

4 Tracey Hanover	Short	5-1	Shouldn't be here
1 Colonel Tilden	McKee	3-1	Record races good
3 Dillon Hall	Nicholls	4-1	Good trial, not improved in last
2 Prince Dale	Harrington	10-1	Hasn't shown enough
5 Irving Hanover	Davidson	40-1	Can take it all
6 Miss Hirsch	Whitney	15-1	Not much chance
7 Dan Adams	Palin	20-1	Have her head
8 Joan Nevell	Powell	20-1	Need races bad

Driver Harry Short has been looking forward to this race with TRACEY HANOVER, and should connect. DILLON HALL and PRINCE DALE are the opposition.

LU BARIENT—ANKABAR—TAFFY VOLO

SECOND FIFTH AND SIXTH RACES—Free-for-all trot, purse $805. "The Boston Record."

2 Lu Barient	Brusie	4-3	We best her
5 Ankabar	Parshall	4-5	May make up
4 Taffy Volo	White	5-2	Last out good
1 Bertha C Hanover	Thomas	6-1	Over shy, may awake
3 Hollywood Portia	Dodge	15-1	Erratic, formidable
6 Vanwood	Eaton	20-1	Longshot possibility

LU BARIENT is in the pink of racing form these days. This should mark his second win of the meet, and my best bet of the card. ANKABAR and TAFFY VOLO next rated.

BROWNIE HANOVER—RUTH M MC—KNIGHT HANOVER

THIRD AND SIXTH RACES—Two-year-olds, trot, purse $800, the Boston Transcript.

8 Brownie Hanover	Parshall	2-1	Rates well too
5 Miss Nancy Athlone	Dr. Eaton	3-1	Fit other contender
3 Ruth M Mc	Berry	4-1	Has chance
1 Col. Ramsey	Thomas	10-1	Could win it all
4 Knight Hanover	Whitney	10-1	Fighting fool
10 Miss Peter Volo	Brusie	10-1	should be in the money
9 Hollywood Gipsy	Dodge	10-1	Not much chance
6 Dan Jr.	Whitney	15-1	Hasn't shown much
2 Peter Hanover	Bibby	15-1	Long shot possibility
7 Protectorate	Bibby	20-1	Over its head

LEE STOUT—BETTY SUNSHINE—OAKHURST QUEEN

SEVENTH RACE—Free-for-all handicap trot, purse $700, distance 1 mile, the Lawrence Daily Telegram.

8 Princess Helene	Stewart	3-1	Trial work good
6 Betty Sunshine	Carney	4-1	The one to beat
1 Colonel Dime	Gilman	4-1	Serious contender
3 Bramble	Short	6-1	May be a sleeper
10 Volo	Long	6-1	Long shot possibility
9 Lee Stout	Brusie	10-1	The driver an alert
2 Perry Hanover	Delaney	10-1	Quite a horse
5 Oakhurst Queen	Freeman	20-1	Not much chance
4 Pontoon Express	Whitney	20-1	Slower than a postal
8 Breezan	Hoeffner	20-1	Has come out of his shy

OAKHURST QUEEN—LEE STOUT—BETTY SUNSHINE

TENTH RACE—Classified trot, purse $700, distance ⅝ mile, "The Lawrence Daily Telegram."

8 Princess Helene	Stewart	3-1	Worth watching
6 Betty Sunshine	Carney	4-1	A fair one
9 Colonel Dime	Gilman	4-1	Serious contender
10 Bramble	Short	6-1	May be a sleeper
4 Volo	Rodney	10-1	Long shot possibility
5 Lee Stout	Brusie	10-1	One to beat
3 Perry Hanover	Delaney	15-1	Didn't le chance
2 Oakhurst Queen	Freeman	20-1	In tiptop
7 Dan Hanover	Farrell	20-1	Slower than a postal
1 Breezan	Hoeffner	20-1	Has come out of his shy

TROT Tops Harness PROGRAM

By Ed Cogswell

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., Aug. 9—Featuring the racing card today is the free for all trot in which Lu Barient, owned by W. H. Bird, Revere, Mass., and driven by Harry Brusie, will soar into the highest rank devoted to trotters in the grand circuit.

Other events listed are the three-year-old race, two-year-old trot, and a couple of classified races. Each has an exceptionally good entry of starters.

Lieutenant Governor Joseph Hurley of Massachusetts can pick winners—had ticket on Tomac—paid $54.90—got news from Dr. F. B. Sweet, owner of gelding—so is said—Governor H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire not far behind in cashing in either—pays to attend race track luncheons.

John Dodge, owner and driver of Hollywood Phyllis, is 70 years of age—Owns stock farm in Lexington, Ky., another in Groveton, Ga.—Breeds all the trotters he campaigns—Lawrence Hanover will rank second choice for classic, Hambletonian stake—Greyhound the favorite, naturally.

Paul Bowser all smiles when Calumet Dubuque landed second and payoff of $15 for show—Silver King true to his name—copped fifth race and followers scooped in $54 for each winning ticket—Hollywood showed lot of speed—Last half of race in 1 minute; last two furlongs in 29 seconds.

Trainers Berry, Palin, Parshall and Short leading the driving brigade at the meeting in wins—Elmer Kent, Haymarket, daily visitor—former owner of famous mare, Eddie Mac—Frank Morrison doing the races—power in Fellsway, Somerville, Mass., driving club for years—Doc King of Mystic Park days trying to pick winner—tells me he is living in Cambridge, Mass.

Eddie Mack and Dave Egan hike to Agawam race track next Monday—Will stick there till after October meeting—H. A. Rugg, veteran horseman of Lowell, Mass., has shipped four pacers to this track—84 years old—This doesn't bother him—President W. J. McDonald of Metropolitan Driving Club enjoy driving his Cadillac in personal races—knows the way around the track, too.

BATTERY'S ALIBI REVERE STANDOUT

FAVORED BY OUTSIDE POST

By Sam Cohen

Battery's Alibi appears the best of the group in the Second Futurity Elimination race at Wonderland Park, Revere, tonight.

Favored by the outside position which he likes, he should have little trouble holding the others safe.

Mike J. likes the inside. With this break in his favor, he will be dangerous if he runs true to form.

Connie Mack and Fleetwood have both been campaigning steadily at this distance. Either could surprise.

Clark Gable to Star in "San Francisco"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Los Angeles, Aug. 9—I think everybody will be glad to know what Clark Gable is really going to do next. Every director, supervisor and producer on the M-G-M lot has put in a bid for Clark who cannot possibly fill all these assignments.

Louella O. Parsons

Now I have the official information that Clarks next is actually to be "San Francisco," a story of the early days in the Golden Gate City, produced by Bernard Hyman and John Emerson, and adapted by Anita Loos from an original by Bob Hopkins.

This is the first time that Clark, who has made a screen love to every M-G-M star, has had the singing Jeanette MacDonald as his leading lady and this is the first musical drama in which he has appeared.

We were all sure after Henry Wilcoxon's performance in "The Crusades" that Paramount would wake up to the realization that they have a grand property in him and an actor who only needs the right roles to prove his mettle.

Mae West saw him in the De-Mille picture and immediately put the finger on him and so now he will be the gent to whom the West gives her affections in "Klondike Lou." Seems that Victor McLaglen, Mae's first choice, is not available.

Josef von Sternberg, whose ideas for Marlene Dietrich's personality were a passive demeanor on the screen, an interesting hairdress, fetching hats and fluffy neckwear, has a new idea.

He has been testing Marian Marsh for his first Columbia picture, who although she is nothing like the glamorous Dietrich, has a certain charm and beauty. Joe is apparently trying to make Miss Marsh over into another Dietrich and the experiment will be interesting to watch.

Chatter in Hollywood: One of Hollywood's most interesting extras at the moment is Paulette Goddard's mother. Maybe we shouldn't call her an extra since Charlie Chaplin has given her a bit to play in his next picture, "Modern Times" and they tell me she is doing all right.

And here's something. The town today was agog over the report that Charlie, whose picture is supposed to be one hundred per cent. silent, had decided to sing. Investigation proves that Charlie will pantomime a song but we won't hear his voice.

Ian Hunter today was given one of the most important roles of his career since he came here from England. Hal Wallis has cast him opposite Kay Francis as one of the two male leads in "I Found Stella Parrish."

Snapshots of Hollywood

VAN SMITH on a party with ESTELLE TAYLOR, just too, too devoted; NANCY CARROLL, Vidi's favorite girl friend, is in Reno and ESTELLE'S boy friend LEE TRACY is away on his yacht; LEON GORDON, who is due to be divorced any minute, stepping out with PEGGY FEARS. WALTER WANGER receiving word that PEGGY CONKLIN, his star, is being married in New York but nary a word about the bridegroom. BING CROSBY wiring home for more money, his brother, Everett, his manager, fit to be tied because Bing wants to buy another horse; KATHARINE HEPBURN studying French like mad for "Sylvia Scarlett." That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Modernized 'Dante's Inferno'

By Joyce Dana

Now that Hollywood has turned with a vengeance to the classics, it's not surprising to find "Dante's Inferno" blazing its way to the screen.

Long heralded as one of the most spectacular accomplishments of the [illegible] idiom, the Fox version of the first phase of The Divine Comedy, modern and magnificent, opened yesterday at the Paramount and Fenway.

Two sights and sounds of hell as we post saw them are here merely the picturesque framework upon which has been superimposed the very modern story of Jim Carter, played with a hard conviction by Spencer Tracy. And, although Mr. Tracy won't win any nominations as Hollywood's handsomest hero, he's still tops when it comes to acting like the man you might meet today or tomorrow.

We meet Carter first in his own private hell, the head of a ship where he drives men. He uses cruel means to help people but his hand of iron only fans the flames of hate.

He does. "And it's through the medium of Coney Island, where our Jim first shows up dodging baseballs in blackface, barking the customers into a paper mache Dante's Inferno, and marrying the boss's niece.

From then on anything that stands in his way is tossed heartlessly aside to his ambition.

Mr. Tracy gets his melodramatic and just deserts, and goes through the harrowing climax realistically enough. During his intro-spective convalescence, the [illegible] horrors of the damned are revealed to him.

The modern story, despite the high degree of melodramatics it achieves, could have stood by itself, and for that matter have been labelled "Coney Island Carnival."

But Fox Films is to be commended for turning the attention of the movie-going public by whatever shoddy means to one of literature's greatest masterpieces.

Claire Trevor is good enough as the brave little wife who at last rebels. Henry B. Walthall does wonders to make his part as the heroic admirer of Dante convincing.

"Dante's Inferno" is by no means a great screen epic. It could have been a desecration of history. By a couple of good lengths it escaped that.

On the same program is "Without Children," an adaptation of a novel by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow (not Mrs. Woodrow Wilson!).

Changes in 'Mikado'

By Universal Service.

Los Angeles, Aug. 9—Into the Los Angeles theatrical world, a new form of censorship was introduced today.

K. Nakazawa, attache of the Japanese consul's office, viewed a special rehearsal of the operetta, "The Mikado," and at his suggestion certain changes were made in the lines of the Gilbert and Sullivan opus.

This was in deference to Empress Hirochito of Japan, the caricature of whom in a current magazine is a subject of international comment.

As far as local dramatic critics know, this is the first time such a change has been made in "The Mikado," production of which is forbidden in Japan, where it is construed as a form of lese majesty.

John Golden Plans Two Premieres in Boston

Dennis, Aug. 9—Forecasting the best theatrical season in many, with a renaissence of interest in the theater particularly in Boston, John Golden, the producer, visiting Dennis to watch the performances of Roland Young in "All Bow Down," the new comedy of theatrical life which he is presenting at the Cape Playhouse by arrangement with Raymond Moore, promised to give Boston at least two important first nighters the coming season.

"If the business being done here is any indication, the theatrical business is coming out of the slump with a bang," Golden said.

"I now plan to bring Roland Young in 'All Bow Down' into Boston before the New York opening. It is a clean show—the sort I have always produced—and I believe it is the kind of show that Governor Curley, whom I number among my best friends, will approve. Until we have made certain changes in the third act, I cannot make any definite announcement as to when the Boston openings will take place.

"When I leave here I am hurrying back to New York to get to work on a new show for Maude Adams. It is possible I may also produce that in Boston prior to New York. I am sorry I will not have plans for it sufficiently far along before Raymond Moore's season is ended to produce it here in Dennis.

"The same reason it has been my custom to produce one or more new plays here at the Cape Playhouse every season. Not only does the active co-operation of Mr. Moore and his staff make production a pleasure, but I believe that the audiences one gets here enables one to form a better judgment on audience reaction than anywhere else."

Spook Night

Tonight is "spook night" at Loew's State.

El-Wyn and his gang of ghosts take over the stage at 11:30, and thereafter coils and thrills hold sway.

This is El-Wyn's first appearance in Boston. He provides table-tipping, talking skulls, ghost-walking and dozens of other weird stunts, with the "ghost" himself walking around and getting chummy with the audience.

Because of the nature of the program, no children's tickets will be sold.

Circus at Paragon

Roberta's Circus, one of the most pretentious acts in show history, will entertain the patrons at Paragon Park beginning Monday.

Appearing here directly following successes in Europe, there are startling and thrilling acts included in the Roberta entertainment, which will be presented free to patrons of the Park twice nightly.

Elaborate fireworks displays are scheduled for Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

The Palm Garden Grille, with music by Roy's Melody Makers and two floor shows each evening, continues to be a popular spot at the park.

LOVE BLIND

Girls in Cruel Prank

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

SYNOPSIS

Mary Shannon, young and pretty stenographer, is broken-hearted when she learns that James Todd, Jr., is engaged to Nesta Grainger. Mary had known "Jamie" for two years and, though he never committed himself, he inferred that some day they would marry.

She tries to hide her hurt feelings from her parents and Aunt Willie. One night Mary works overtime and her handsome employer, Stephen Bennet, takes her to dinner. He has just been appointed manager of the Seattle office of the A. A. Hesley Steamship Company and wants Mary to go as his secretary. She does not want to leave her family.

At home, Mary writes "Jamie," asking him to meet her when he comes to town so that she can congratulate him. Next day, at the office, Ethelyn Piper tells Mary that Stephen Bennet is "mad" about Mary.

Therefore, when Mary bids Stephen farewell, she is exceptionally cool. When days pass with no answer to her letters, Mary knows she is wasting in vain for "Jamie." Aunt Willie, middle-aged and trying to be young, spends all her money in beauty shops and on diets.

Mrs. Shannon is worried about her for she seems to have lost her head over some man she met at a dance. Mr. Samson, Mary's new employer, asks her to go apartment hunting with his wife. Mary finds Mrs. Samson a most attractive young woman and very frank. Mrs. Samson tells Mary she used apartment hunting as an alibi so she could have Mary's company, as she was lonely. They go shopping.

Returning home Mary finds an invitation to "Jamie's" wedding. In the privacy of her room she sobs over her lost love. Aunt Willie come to Mary with a tale of woe about being made the victim of a cruel prank . . .

CHAPTER XI

"Aunt Willie. What HAPPENED?"

"Oh, nothing. Nothing except that the girls thought it would be simply killing to send me fake notes, pretending to come from a certain fellow I met at the dance. He was a little backward, and when the hostess introduced all us girls, why, he danced with me and he didn't dance with any of the others.

"And it got Rose sore—see? So when we had a couple of dances together, why, I said, in a casual way such as anyone would, that I would see him afterwards, and Rose heard me, and as I say it was her idea of a joke to send me those letters. She's the most to blame! I don't blame the others so much. She's always been jealous of me! Always!

"And so I—well, I went to meet him where the note said to, and I waited a while like anybody would, and then I—Then I saw the girls were all there, watching—and I've got as much sense of humor as anybody—but I—heh, heh, heh!—I pretended to laugh, but I . . . oh, I'm so MAD! Mary, wouldn't you be mad? Oh, I—I have to bawl—when I—I get mad—I—

"Don't Tell Dora!"

Between sobs she gasped, Don't tell Dora, that's all. She—she wouldn't understand—how a girl needs a little fun—and—"

Mary had her arms tight around her now. 'Aunt Willie—I know, I know. Don't cry so. It doesn't matter. What if they did laugh? People like that aren't worth crying over. They—'

"Oh you don't understand. I thought they were my friends. And now I can see that they . . . Well, they told everybody—the customers, and Mr. Mosser himself. It's terribly funny, if you can see the joke, I guess, only I—"

"Aunt Willie broke away, wiping her staring, red eyes.

"Go to sleep again, Mary. I'm sorry I bothered you. I just had to tell somebody. I I guess it was funny, all right . . . Now I guess I'll go to bed Gnight."

Twice Mary waked, heard her walking rapidly back and forth in her room, next to hers.

Light from Aunt Willie's window streamed out on the Johnson's lawn next door. She thought of getting up to try to coax her back to bed, but maybe it was better to let her have it out, poor thing . . .

Her eyes closed.

In her sleep she seemed to hear he sound of Aunt Willie's feet running, running away from life . . .

Everybody was late to breakfast, and Ma was furious because Pa, who was starting off on the road again insisted on shaving at t

Aunt Willie Ill

When Mary and Aunt Millie came into the kitchen Pa was leisurely shaving and humming at the sink, and Ma was making hot cakes at the smoky griddle on the stove.

Mary certainly had no appetite, and Aunt Willie didn't seem to, but Ma made them eat the hot cakes, with plenty of bacon.

Why DID she make such a fuss over breakfast? Nobody wants a big breakfast! Nobody wants anything more than orange juice and toast! But she would fry bacon, and fuss, and if you didn't eat like a farm hand she got mad.

Aunt Willie looked awfully bad. Poor Aunt Willie. She had to have her sleep. You can't stay up all night at her age.

Mary hadn't had much sleep, either, but she looked all right thank goodness. No one would suspect that she'd been awake half the night crying. No, indeed! No heart on the sleeve for her. Nobody'll ever be able to say that she was all cut up because Jamie Todd got married.

"Now Willie, don't be stubborn," Ma was begging. "You know it's feed a cold and starve a fever, and if you've got a cold, which you certainly look like, you've got to eat to keep your strength up. Do you think you're well enough to go to work? Do you think you'd better stay home and let me dose you up?"

"I'll go if it kills me!" Aunt Willie said.

Her teeth chattered again.

Mary couldn't get Aunt Willie out of her mind the day was a busy day, and Mrs. Samson dropped in for a few minutes, too.

The Vacant Chair

But all day long she could see that breakfast scene . . . with Aunt Willie drooping over her place at the kitchen table, automatically feeding Tootsie with bits from her plate, heavy eyes staring into space, silent for the only time in her life.

Twice she had the almost irresistible impulse to call home, to ask if Aunt Willie had gone off to work, if she seemed all right.

Those confounded girls, humiliating her that way! Aunt Willie, who'd cheerfully worked overtime for every one of them, and given them lovely presents—much nicer than they ever gave her at Christmas time—making sport of her just because she was a little old and funny . . . when they were no spring chickens themselves . . .

She could hardly wait to get into the house that night.

"Where's Aunt Willie?"

Ma looked up tranquilly, surprised that Mary should rush to the kitchen, ask for Aunt Willie before she even got off her coat and hat.

"Wh. I don't know. I suppose she's sleeping a little late. Mary, as long as she isn't here, I wonder if you'd just get off your things and feed Tootsie? She's whining so I can't stand it. SHUT UP, Tootsie! You'll get your dinner in a minute—I can't leave the veal cutlets—they burn so easily—"

But the fat old dog wouldn't eat. She squatted before her plate on the kitchen floor and whined.

"Well! That's the first time that animal ever refused food. Feel her nose, Mary." Is it hot? Not that it will hurt her any to miss a meal!"

Mary said she ought to be home now. You don't suppose she's sick? Too sick to come home?"

"Oh, no. One of the girls would have telephoned. More than likely she stopped at the china for a treatment, or a shampoo or something. She did look bad, though—"

They went to the front door, looked up the street. Dinner was always on the table at 6:30. Aunt Willie was never late.

"I wish she'd hurry. I just hate to have things dry up. I'm glad your father's not here tonight, he gets so impatient with Willie. I do hope he does well on this trip, though he says nobody's buying. I try not to worry, but with the taxes and insurance and all . . . listen! Was that the front steps?"

It wasn't.

They sat on opposite sides of the kitchen table. The clock on the shelf ticked on.

No Aunt Willie.

"I have to start without her," Ma said, "but I hate to have everything spoil. I made a southern corn pudding, too.

Summer Appetizers

A PLATTER OF COOL, DELECTABLE TIDBITS

JUST LOOK at this platter of smart summer appetizers, all ready to be brought into the living-room with a tray of tall, tinkling drinks.

Pretty as a picture, don't you think?

Each tempting morsel on the platter is right and dainty—the very thing to tempt finicky, end-of-the-summer appetites. Some are made of fruit, and fruit—as everyone knows—is the last word in summer appetizers. Around the edge of the platter, stuck on toothpicks, you'll see chilled melon balls and juicy little chunks of fresh pineapple, flecked with finely minced mint. Don't they look coolly alluring? So they are. Just try them.

Two Tasty Canapes

Cucumber and Anchovy canapes add another colorful note to our platter. Ever make them? Here's how. Dip peeled cucumber slices into well-sea-oned French Dressing Drain. Toast small rounds of bread on a slow oven. Dip edges of toast lightly into mayonnaise, then into minced parsley. Place slices of cucumber on toast; top with a small mound of anchovy paste and a slice of stuffed olive.

Our other canape is a tasty Caviar Circle. For these cut thinly sliced bread in circles; toast on one side; spread untoasted side with mayonnaise, then with caviar seasoned with a few drops of lemon juice. Sprinkle with sieved hard-cooked egg yolk and garnish with thin slice of stuffed olive.

The small, perfect tomato in the center of the platter holds a zesty filling made of chopped anchovies, diced celery, finely shredded cabbage and a little tart mayonnaise. It's topped off with a curled anchovy.

Send for Complete Booklet

The more you know about canapes and hors d'oeuvres, the merrier your entertaining will be. THE Potency OF Two-Bids

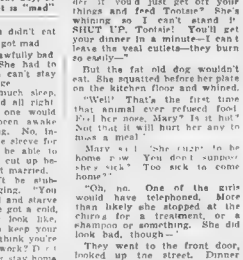
By MRS. CULBERTSON

Rarely is an opening forcing two-bid made without three Aces.

It is therefore highly likely when the partner of the two-bidder holds a long suit which is solid except for the Ace, that he can nearly always expect his suit to be worth its full value in taking tricks.

If the player has the courage to overlook the apparent weakness of his own hand and remember the terrific power shown by his partner's bid, he will make it easy to reach seemingly difficult Grand Slam contracts.

North-South dealer.
Both sides vulnerable



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
2♠ (1)	Pass	3♠ (2)	3♡ (3)
3♠	4♡ (4)	5♠ (5)	5♡
7♠ (6)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) An excellent example of the minimum opening two-bid. North has four-plus honor-tricks and only four losers.

(2) South gives a positive response, having 2½-plus honor-tricks and a strong suit.

(3) West took his life in his hands, for though he was vulnerable he sensed unbalanced distribution all around and knew that if East could support hearts, a profitable sacrifice might be possible.

(4) East's distributional support permits a raise.

(5) This is an excellent bid, which made the Grand Slam possible. By rebidding freely South showed a strong club suit, for it had not been supported.

(6) After South's club rebid, North could count thirteen tricks and of course he knew that it would be impossible for his opponents to win a trick before he could get the lead.

North was lucky that West's void suit was spades rather than clubs, or an opening club lead would have defeated the contract.

As the cards were divided however, seven spades could not be molested.

North won the seven spades the Ace of diamonds and had at his disposal six clubs and three more diamonds if he had cared to take the finesse—a total of 17 tricks at a contract for only 13.

Inspired by an Envelope

By ANNICE BRINK

WE'RE TOLD that an envelope, slit open and and squatting on the head, was the inspiration for this crocheted cap. That may be, but it certainly has a peasant-ish air, and we can think of nothing more delightful than a short, crisp, pleated shirt, a sweater and this cap—for a campus costume, particularly. Make it in fall colors, to go with your nonchalant sports things. If you're very expert with a needle, you might make it in a pastel, and end the beach season with a splurge. Also, if autumn comes, the cruise season's not far behind . . . For crocheting directions, write to Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston Evening American, and inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Correction: Those handicrafters who wrote in, requesting the Tuxedo sweater directions, and received suit directions through error, may have the directions they desire, immediately, simply by writing in, without inclosing the customary return envelope. We are sorry!

Sturdy Frock

Use Washable Fabric

The Modern Bluebeard

By RUBY AYRES

"THE hand that rocks the cradle, rules the world."

So sang the poets in the days before women ventured to decide for themselves whether they would rock cradles or not, or whether—fulfilling that function for which an all-wise Providence predisposed them—they would at the same time trespass upon other fields, and dare literally to take a hand at ruling the world by other, and perhaps less tedious means.

The man who objects to the modern working woman for a wife is the Modern Bluebeard, the man who likes to kiss his wife on the doorstep if he has time, and to go complacently away, assured that she will do nothing more dissipating all day than dust the drawingroom and gossip with her neighbors. He likes to turn the key in the door of his outside life, and to forbid the wife of his bosom to be overcurious about it, it would not suit the book of this Modern Bluebeard at all to marry a woman with an outside life of her own and a key to its door.

I would remind the Modern Bluebeard that a "business" wife is seldom, if ever, that bugbear of all men, a nagger. She has too many interests of her own to wonder fretfully what her husband is doing in his spare time, too wise to pester him with boring, domestic details, too competent to ask him to sack the cook because she is afraid to do so, too understanding to disbelieve him (openly at all events) when he relates that he has missed his train. The husband of a clever modern woman seldom has to invent fairy stories in order to explain an unmentioned absence.

Solving A BRIDE'S Problems

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—We are having a 10 o'clock morning wedding in a Catholic church. The maid of honor, one bridesmaid, the best man, and two ushers make up the wedding group.

What is the correct processional and recessional for them to follow? Does the best man go back into the vestry, or does he come down in the recessional with the others?

2—My two sisters, who are to be my maid of honor and bridesmaid, are wearing blue net dresses, with the one-piece hooded short capes of the same material and color.

Shall the maid of honor wear all-blue, and the bridesmaid wear pink pumps and pink gloves, or would it be more attractive for both to wear all-blue?

4—My wedding gown is white lace. What material of pump or sandal should I wear? 5—Are short veils, worn over the face, in fashion this year?

6—Our reception is to be at 2:30 in my sister home. Shall we serve our guests a supper about 6:30, or do you think that it would be nicer to serve a buffet earlier in the afternoon?

Would it be correct for me to send an invitation addressed to her and, after her name, write the name of the sorority?

I want the other girls to know that I haven't forgotten them altogether, but don't think it necessary to send each one of them an invitation. Is this all right?

DOROTHY.

1—In the procession, the two ushers walk first, together. Then the bridesmaid, alone.

Then the maid of honor, alone. Then you and your father. In the recesional, you and the groom walk together, first. Then the maid of honor, alone. Then the bridesmaid, alone. Last, the two ushers.

However, since you are having your sisters as your only attendants, and since they are dressing alike (or very easily could), it would, I think, be especially charming if you have them walk together in both the processional and recessional.

But if you wish to make a distinction about their importance in your wedding party, then the one whom you wish to honor more would be the maid of honor and would walk just before you in the processional, and just after you and your husband in the recessional.

2—Correctly the best man does not take part in either the processional or in the recessional. After the recessional has started down the aisle the best man goes to the vestry to give the priest the fee and to attend to any other details that need his attention.

3—If you decide to have your sisters walk together, it would be more effective to have them dressed identically alike.

If you decide to have them walk alone, then it would be charming to vary the costumes by the details you have suggested.

4—With a white lace dress, satin pumps would be the most appropriate.

5—Short veils worn over the face are very seldom worn.

6—It would be best to serve your buffet refreshments at the hours of the reception—and much more convenient than serving a supper at six-thirty.

"FELT MISERABLE MOST OF THE TIME"

Then Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Checked Her Constipation*

Read Mrs. Marsden's letter: "I have been a subject of constipation* for the last 11 years. I felt miserable and irritable most of the time. My husband is a manager of a chain store. He said 'Why don't you try Kellogg's ALL-BRAN?'

"ALL-BRAN helped me right away. I have taken it now for the past 5 months, and I am as regular as a clock. My health is fine, and I feel full of pep."—Mrs. Charles Marsden, 681 Merrick St., Detroit, Mich.

ALL-BRAN provides gentle "bulk" to aid regular habits. It also supplies vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" of ALL-BRAN is more effective than the "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not corrected this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—We are having a 10 o'clock morning wedding in a Catholic church. The maid of honor, one bridesmaid, the best man, and two ushers make up the wedding group.

What is the correct processional and recessional for them to follow? Does the best man go back into the vestry, or does he come down in the recessional with the others?

2—My two sisters, who are to be my maid of honor and bridesmaid, are wearing blue net dresses, with the one-piece hooded short capes of the same material and color.

Shall the maid of honor wear all-blue, and the bridesmaid wear pink pumps and pink gloves, or would it be more attractive for both to wear all-blue?

4—My wedding gown is white lace. What material of pump or sandal should I wear? 5—Are short veils, worn over the face, in fashion this year?

6—Our reception is to be at 2:30 in my sister home. Shall we serve our guests a supper about 6:30, or do you think that it would be nicer to serve a buffet earlier in the afternoon?

Would it be correct for me to send an invitation addressed to her and, after her name, write the name of the sorority?

I want the other girls to know that I haven't forgotten them altogether, but don't think it necessary to send each one of them an invitation. Is this all right?

DOROTHY.

1—In the procession, the two ushers walk first, together. Then the bridesmaid, alone.

Then the maid of honor, alone. Then you and your father. In the recesional, you and the groom walk together, first. Then the maid of honor, alone. Then the bridesmaid, alone. Last, the two ushers.

However, since you are having your sisters as your only attendants, and since they are dressing alike (or very easily could), it would, I think, be especially charming if you have them walk together in both the processional and recessional.

But if you wish to make a distinction about their importance in your wedding party, then the one whom you wish to honor more would be the maid of honor and would walk just before you in the processional, and just after you and your husband in the recessional.

2—Correctly the best man does not take part in either the processional or in the recessional. After the recessional has started down the aisle the best man goes to the vestry to give the priest the fee and to attend to any other details that need his attention.

3—If you decide to have your sisters walk together, it would be more effective to have them dressed identically alike.

If you decide to have them walk alone, then it would be charming to vary the costumes by the details you have suggested.

4—With a white lace dress, satin pumps would be the most appropriate.

5—Short veils worn over the face are very seldom worn.

6—It would be best to serve your buffet refreshments at the hours of the reception—and much more convenient than serving a supper at six-thirty.

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Showy Wedding Or Nest Egg?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT'S A PLEASURE to get a letter like the one which follows.

These young people, who are engaged and expect to be married, have the blessed gift of common sense.

They realize that a nest-egg in the bank and a comfortably furnished home are more desirable assets than a big wedding with all the frills.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"We've been engaged for three years, and it has been real good fun to take trolleys instead of taxis, go to the movies only once a week and not waste our money on anything. The result is we've enough put by to furnish our home and have a nest egg in the bank for emergencies.

"The other night at supper I announced before my family that I intended to be married without any splurge, and my fiance, who was having supper with us, backed me up.

SPEND ALL

"The family objected, and planned out an elaborate wedding on the spot. I was to have white dress and veil, and my sisters—there are four of them—all wanted to be bridesmaids, and have their boy friends for ushers. And there was to be a big wedding reception, with elaborate refreshments.

"Our faces (Harry's and mine) grew longer as the family planned a wedding which would take most of our savings. My mother said I owed this to my sisters, and that one lovely wedding in the family always meant another.

"Harry and I made our escape and decided then and there to "mutiny." (He used to be on a sailing ship and uses nautical terms.) We decided to run away, or not to run exactly, but present ourselves to the clergyman some afternoon and to be married in our old clothes, and then have a week at the seashore instead of all the fuss and feathers proposed by the family.

SENSIBLE SOLUTION

"Do you think it would be a good thing to go ahead with the arrangements for this type of wedding and announce at the breakfast table that morning: 'Harry and I are going to be married today. You're welcome to come, but there won't be any pomp and ceremony.' Or shall we go to another city and send them a telegram?

"BESS."

Your idea of sidestepping an expensive and spectacular wedding, which would eat up your nest-egg and furniture money, seems most sensible to me. What profiteth bridal finery and a wedding reception, if there is no nest-egg in the bank with which to meet future emergencies?

Better announce it to the family, as you have suggested, rather than go to another city, and send a telegram saying that the marriage has taken place.

A runaway marriage is never as desirable as one which is open and above board, especially in your case, when the entire family knows of your engagement. There is no reason to sneak; so tell them you've decided to be sensible and make a wedding present to yourselves instead of your friends.

YOUNG BOY DEFENDS MOTHER

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Please do not think because I write you of such low conditions in my family that we are low people. My husband is a college man, makes a splendid salary and has nice friends. Lately he's been drinking to excess, and has beaten me terribly. The last time this happened my 14-year-old boy came to my defense and almost killed his father, who was forced to go to a hospital for treatment, and who is still quite lame.

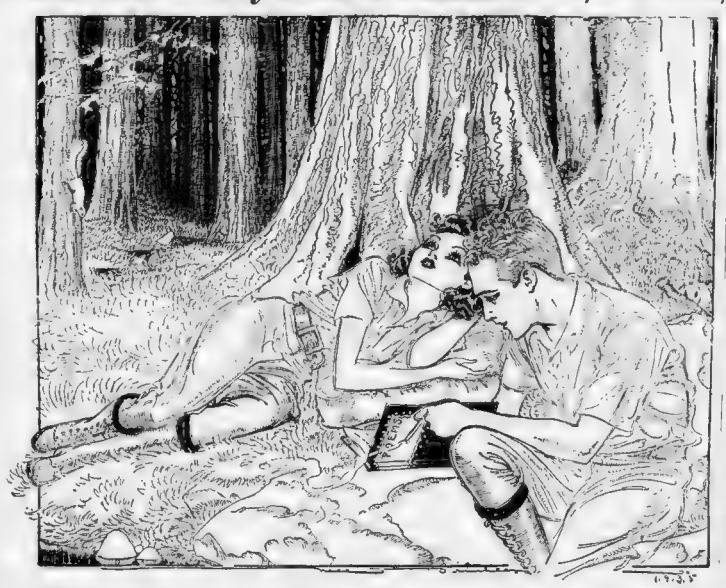
If these conditions go on, I'm sure my boy will kill him, as many boys have done when their mothers have been abused. I hesitate to take this matter up with the courts. The curious thing is my husband does not seem to resent, as much as I expected, the beating my son gave him.

A. M. F.

As you seem to be in comfortable circumstances and hesitate to take your family troubles to court for fear of publicity, why not consult a good lawyer? Preferably one who specializes in domestic affairs. It is almost impossible to pick up a paper these days without reading of some tragedy such as you fear. Better take the matter in hand in time by consulting an attorney.

Vacations—They Lead to Romance

By Nell Brinkley



Those who go to Nature—undying inspiration for us, in spite of the facetious "ain't Nature wonderful" crowd—do find wonderful things in her company! YOU may love mountains and the like high places. It may be the restless blue sea that appeals to the sentiment in YOU. One woman I know had a passion for the desert that equaled that of the creator of wistful "Krazy Kat!" Its color and shimmer and vast wastes spelled ROMANCE to her.

It seems to me no man and girl can walk under the high cathedral arches of the woods with the green, hushed light as from stained-glass filling the quiet corridors between the tree-trunks, with such perfect silence around them as is nowhere else in the wild world, can be "under the greenwood tree," beside the forest brook, most especially with a book of poems, and a liking for each other to start with—without falling IN LOVE!

LOVE is there like the other spirits of the wood from ancient Greece.

"And they read no more that day," seems written for wanderers and readers in the woods. The forest and her intense silences bring young people close to the primitive. Nothing seems important beside the spectacle in their imaginations of Love and Happiness.

They do not count money then. Wild-honey and a house built of logs seems enough!

Money is very fine—and lovers need it—but true love can manage on very little of it sometimes.

Answers to Readers' Beauty Problems

By THE BEAUTY EDITOR

Question—What causes tiny red lines to appear directly under the skin surface on the nose. I have been bathing my nose with iced applications but the condition is steadily getting worse. What do you advise? Helen F., Belmont

Answer—Tiny red lines under the skin are ruptured capillaries—small blood vessels close to the surface of the skin which have broken their walls. Iced applications are the worst things you could apply to this condition.

Never apply either hot or cold water, strong bleaches or strong The electric needle is used with success for their banishment. What the cause is nobody knows. A light diet is often recommended by specialists. If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will give you the name of the skin specialist who has been very highly recommended by physicians at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Jellied Meats Are Ideal For Weekend Meals

By MARTHA LEE

(From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB)

When planning week-end menus remember that jellied meats give the most convincing effect of coolness of any meat you can put onto your summer dinner table.

The jelly which binds together the ingredients in the meat loaf may be made in either one of two ways. If you've boiled a shank of veal, or a chicken, the stock will contain enough natural gelatin to set itself. Boil the liquid down to about one cup, season it and pour it over the chopped meat and vegetable mixture and let it chill. Meats with no bone and less connective tissue than veal and chicken cannot be depended upon to jelly without additional gelatin.

The safest and easiest method of preparing a jellied loaf is to make a regulation gelatin mixture of plain, unflavored gelatin dissolved in seasoned liquid. This liquid is usually meat stock or plain water seasoned with salt, pepper, celery and onion, and perhaps a bit of vinegar or lemon juice. The usual proportion of one tablespoon gelatin to one pint of liquid should be increased 1¼ or two times for a firm, sliceable loaf. And remember that every tablespoon of vinegar, cold water or sugar is counted in as liquid.

Let the gelatin mixture cool until it begins to thicken very slightly, then press the meat and vegetables down firmly into the liquid. Rinsing the mold with cold water before putting in the meat makes it easy to remove the loaf. Or you may line the pan with heavy oiled paper, leaving the ends long enough to act as handles in removing the loaf.

FAMILY SERVICE

Small individual molds of lemon flavored gelatin with chopped ham or pineapple or strips of ham and a whole pickled peach make attractive party servings. For family service we suggest a veal, celery and green pepper combination in plain gelatin or a ham and hard cooked egg loaf set in slightly acidulated gelatin.

JELLIED VEAL LOAF

Use 5 pounds veal shanks. Have the bones sawed into 2-inch lengths Place in a deep kettle, add cold water to cover the meat and bones, approximately 5 to 6 cups. Cover and place over a low fire to simmer until the meat is tender. Remove the meat and cool. Allow the stock to cook down to 1½ cups. Cut all long fibres of meat, croswise into one-half inch lengths and break apart into small sections. Rinse loaf pan with cold water.

Arrange the cut meat loosely in the pan. Strain the stock and season highly with salt, pepper, celery salt and paprika. Press meat down with the back of a spoon until the top is flat and smooth. Set away to congeal. If possible, allow loaf to cool in a refrigerator so that the stock will become stiff enough to slice easily and hold the meat together. Chopped pimiento or green pepper may be added to the loaf before cooling.

JELLIED HAM LOAF

1½ tablespoons plain gelatin
½ cup cold water
¾ cup boiling water
¼ cup vinegar
2 hard cooked eggs
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped celery
1 pimiento
½ green pepper
1 tablespoon onion (if desired)

Soak gelatin in cold water for 10 minutes. Add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add vinegar and salt and cool until it thickens slightly. Add ham, celery, pepper and pimiento. Rinse loaf pan in cold water, arrange slices of egg and strips of green pepper on the bottom and sides of the pan and pour in the ham mixture. Press down firmly and chill. Unmold onto platter and garnish with parsley.

DICKY SPEAKS OF 'FLOSS' TO WIFE

CHAPTER 417

DICKY GRINNED reluctantly back at Lillian as she told him that she would be good, and adjured him to "get the rest of your broadcast off your chest."

He owes so much to her—his life and reputation at the cost of tragedy to herself—that no matter what the provocation — and she does bait him outrageously sometimes—he never permits himself to become really angry at her.

"I haven't much more to say," he said. "Ede was bent on making mischief—sometimes I think that woman is going out of her mind—"

"You flatter our friend," Lillian murmured. "If you said she was going out of her vacuum, now—"

"The amendment is accepted," Dicky told her, chuckling. "But, granting all that, she surely was ready to raise holy hades if she could, and she figured that she could best get Madge's dander up by spilling something about a mysterious woman. But that magnificent whopper you told, darling, simply bowled her over. She didn't have an arrow left in her quiver. I'm ever so much obliged, old dear."

NOT READY TO TELL

"Obliged enough to give us the real lowdown on 'Floss'?" Lillian asked sweetly. "It seems a bit thick to have Ede know all about somebody whose last name we don't even know."

"You have nothing on—" Dicky began quickly, then stopped abruptly, with face again crimsoned.

"Look here!" he burst out. "Can't you let things alone for a time? There's reason—a good one, too—why I can't let you in on this business for a while. But I'll spoon all the lentils as soon as I know—as I can."

"That's enough for me," I said decidedly, before Lillian could speak. "Tell me as much or as little as you please, at any time you please. I'll wait for enlightenment until you're ready to give it to me. It really doesn't matter if I never get it."

In my anxiety to prove my absolute trust in my husband, I stressed unduly my indifference to the whole subject of 'Floss' and I saw my mistake when my husband's eyes widened and his brows arched as I finished my little speech.

A GRACEFUL EXIT

"Thank you," he said, and though his voice echoed gratitude and admiration, I wondered if I were mistaken in thinking I heard a sardonic undertone. When he rose, as if punctuating his words, and sauntered toward the door, I was sure that I had heard that undertone aright for there was a chilled something in his face that had not been there before.

"If you ladies will kindly excuse me," he said. "I think I'll make the rounds of the sick rooms and the dungeon cells—I understand we have a regular inquisition chamber in our basement—and see what trifling items of news I can pick up for the local paper."

BLOW TO DICKY'S PRIDE?

He swung gracefully out of the door, and I looked after him with uneasy wonder. I did not realize Lillian had seen my expression until I heard her throaty chuckle

"I'm not sure," she said, as if weighing her words carefully, "but I think that could be called a blow below the belt, I mean," she amended hastily, "the one you gave Dicky just before his dignified exit."

"Why! What did I say?" I queried distressingly, "I didn't mean—"

"Of course, you didn't," Lillian said. "That was the beauty of it—your perfect unconsciousness. But you can bet the last cookie in the jar that your husband tasted the full flavor of it, and is still savoring it. You certainly registered the loveliest and most complete indifference to 'Floss' or to any other female of Dicky's acquaintance."

I gave a little gasp of dismay.

"I never meant—" I began.

"Of course, you didn't," Lillian retorted. "If you had meant it, it never would have registered so completely. But there's no harm done. Instead, you've accomplished something distinctly worth while. It won't do the Dicky-bird a bit of harm to believe that you really don't care a whoop in the hot place about 'Floss' or any other dame of his acquaintance."

She rose from her chair and made me a mocking salaam. "With which few sapient words, I shall bid you au revoir," she

FLOYD GIBBONS

THIS very well drawn sketch of the Ace Adventure Sleuth was sent to us by Carl Bell, of 40 West Walnut Park, Roxbury.

Carl has been unable to walk since the age of two, he tells us, because of infantile paralysis.

But that hasn't stopped the fires of ambition in Carl's young life, for although he has never had a lesson, he goes right ahead and makes use of his artistic gift.

This pen portrait of friend Floyd seems to testify to a very real ability, don't you think so, boys and girls? Artist Bell is twenty-two and wants to become a newspaper cartoonist.

Many thanks, Carl, and here's hoping you will realize your ambitions.—The Editor.

'Jungle Afloat'

Chet Rising, Goes Hunting and Finds Danger—on a Ship in Mid-Ocean

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

Ahoy, me hearties. Get out the old sextant and box a practice round with the compass. And don't forget to strap on your life preserver and wrap the old sou'wester hat around your noggin, for today we're going big-game hunting with Chester Rising, of 321 61st street, Brooklyn, New York.

What's that Johnny? I'm getting a bit mixed up? You don't go hunting animals with a sextant and a compass, and nobody but ever went out after big game dressed in a life preserver and a sou'wester hat? Well, Johnny, that just goes to show how wrong you can be when you try to make anything logical out of adventure. You are going to need all that sea-going gear, Johnny, because this game hunt of Chet Rising's is going to take place far up in the interior of the S. S. Granite State, a freight and passenger steamer, homeward bound from the Orient.

It was in May, 1921, and Chet was signed on as a fireman on the Granite State. The S. S. Granite State was a brand new boat, then, on her maiden voyage to the Far East. She touched at Honolulu and Yokohama, and Calcutta, India, and at Calcutta she took on board a passenger named Raabe.

Maybe you've heard of this fellow Raabe and maybe you haven't, but Frank Buck, the animal man, could tell you who he is, because he's in the same line of business. Raabe brought a bunch of animals aboard with him—in cages. And from that time on, the Granite State was a regular Noah's Ark, resounding day and night with the grunts and squeals and roars of half the beasts in creation. Raabe and his wife tended to these animals, with the help of a Hindu they had brought with them. But the Hindu contracted a fever and died a few days out of port, and that put the whole burden of the work on the Raabe family.

It was too much work for the Raabes. They needed help, and they hired Chet Rising to work with the animals in his spare time. There were leopards, black panthers, chimpanzees and orang-utans in that flock of beasts, but Chet managed to get along with them until—

It was one morning about four o'clock. Chet had just got off from a four hour trick in the firerooms and was standing at the rail pumping his lungs full of air, when suddenly he heard a terrific outcry somewhere on the boat deck. He ran toward the sound, but when he reached the deck, he found to see anything out of the ordinary. Puzzled, he moved on a few steps, then froze stock . . . in his tracks.

A tawny, spotted figure appeared suddenly from behind a hatch-covering and began moving down the deck toward him. It was a leopard, broken loose from his cage and wandering footloose about the vessel.

Even as Chet watched it, the animal saw him. With a snarl, he turned and dived into the officers' messroom. The door of that messroom was wide open and hooked to the bulkhead. The leopard might change his mind and come bounding out at any moment! But Chet knew that this was his chance—that it would be fatal—to somebody—to let him get loose again.

With his heart beating like a trip hammer, he sprinted the length of that deck, unhooked the door and slammed it shut with one frantic motion. Then he turned away to summon help.

The first person he met was the Chinese messboy—the one who had let out the warning cry that Chet had heard on the deck below. He was shaking like a leaf, but he went off and called Raabe. Then began the first mid-ocean animal hunt that Chet had ever seen—or heard of.

Under Raabe's direction, half a dozen sailors moved the leopard's cage to the messroom door. The ship's carpenter nailed together a set of planks which would fit over the upper part of the messroom door which the cage would not cover. Then one man quickly opened the door while others moving even more swiftly, pushed the cage up against the opening. A couple more nailed the planking over the upper part of the door, and after that, it was just a matter of smoking Mr. Leopard out of the messroom.

Burning rags tied to the end of a bamboo stick did the work. They held those rags through a porthole until the leopard was so blinded by the smoke that he couldn't stay in the room any longer. Snarling, he crawled into the cage, and at the same moment the cage door was dropped into place. The cage was carried back to the after deck, and the big leopard hunt was over.

And the queerest part of the whole business is that, though there were a flock of passengers on the Granite State not one of them knew of the thrilling jungle drama that was going on almost at their doors. "It was four o'clock in the morning," Chet explains, "and the passengers were all asleep."

But I'm not interested in the adventure you've slept through, boys and girls. What I want is the adventures you've been through. Come on, now, send them in. Tomorrow I'll have a wildcat of a submarine's sinking.

It's as easy as just reaching for it—and a heck of a lot more fun. That's what hundreds of Boston American readers say of the $10 and $100 bills they have received from headline-hunter Floyd Gibbons for their TRUE adventure stories. Floyd says everybody has had at least one thrilling experience, and he wants to write up yours. Send him the facts, and win a pocketful of dough, like Mrs. Henry W. Gould of Worcester, who drew a $10 check and a $100 prize.

HOW TO WIN $100.00

And Membership in The Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club

It's all very simple. There are no rules, and everyone is eligible. Just write down the facts of your most thrilling adventure and mail it to Floyd Gibbons, care of the Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston. Remember, the story must be TRUE. Don't worry about how well you can write. Floyd will take care of that. Floyd will pay $10 for every story printed and an extra prize of $100 for the best story of the month. Keep a copy of your story if you wish to have it, AS NO STORIES CAN BE RETURNED. Do not send valuable pictures or souvenirs of your adventure. Send the FACTS.

Another Eternal Triangle

BLONDIE.... THERE WAS A MAN IN BABY'S ROOM AND HE GRABBED AT ME!
SILLY.... IT WAS JUST THE SCARECROW BABY DUMPLING MADE US BRING HOME FROM THE FARM!
WELL, MAYBE IT DIDN'T GRAB ME, BUT WE'VE GOT TO GET RID OF IT!
BUT, DARLING, BABY DUMPLING SIMPLY LOVES IT.... HE THINKS IT'S A RAG DOLL-
YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE. EITHER THE SCARECROW LEAVES THIS HOUSE OR I DO!
OH, DAGWOOD DON'T MAKE IT SO DIFFICULT FOR ME!

STEEL TRADE

Outlook IS FOUND Cheering

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

New York, Aug. 9—In this complicated power and mechanical age, the barometric steel industry still reflects the pulse beat of modern commerce.

Accordingly, the counter season of steadiness in the industry is an encouraging sign.

The trade is encouraged over the outlook for the near-term future.

E. J. Kulas, president of the Otis Steel Company, in replying to my inquiry as to the outlook from his viewpoint, said:

"In my opinion, steel activities will hold somewhat better this summer than is usual for this season and substantial activities should be witnessed in the autumn."

In weighing the pros and cons, the ironmaster pointed out:

"The favorable factors are evidences of general recovery in a good many lines, particularly in sustained volume of sales and output in the automobile industry together with the fact that new models will be introduced in the fall.

"The unfavorable factors, of course, continue to be the lack of any important activity in building or railroad buying, and the failure of new capital to come into the investment market in the face of government policies which are destructive of confidence."

I next asked the executive what, in his opinion, the Federal Government could do or abstain from doing which would be helpful to the business situation.

Mr. Kulas replied:

"In my opinion the business situation would be greatly aided if the government would place emphasis upon real recovery rather than upon so-called 'reform.'"

As for the prospects for new items and new uses of iron and steel products, Mr. Kulas added:

"The iron and steel industry, through the research departments of the various companies, is constantly improving steel and searching for new markets and new uses. There is every reason to believe recovery will disclose new markets which will use steel on a broad scale. In fact, some of these markets are already at hand, to mention only steel automobile bops and the steel cars. The use of steel in the building of homes is perhaps one of the most attractive markets in the future of the industry and important developments in this direction may be expected over the next few years."

Regarding the pickup in the machine tool business, the executive made the following comment:

"Improved demand for machine tools reflects increased general industrial activity and this, in turn, should benefit the heavy industries."

Increase In Retail Sales

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 9—A consolidation of recovery gains was noted today by Dun & Bradstreet in the Weekly Review of Trade.

"Recovery took a firmer grip on most divisions of trade during the week, with the unusual mid-summer upturn expected to gain momentum until reinforced by the normal fall rise," it was stated.

"As retailers' stocks in most parts of the country have been depleted, buyers engaged in wholesale markets in the largest numbers recorded at some centers in more than five years for the season.

"More comfortable temperatures resulted in wider purchases being set down for retail sales, as industrial operations broadened and farmers' buying power expanded."

The gain for the country over 1934 was estimated at 12 to 48 per cent in the retail field.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

1 Sale and Proposals

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Pursuant to "Secretary's Reports" and "Advance Sheets"
State House, Boston, Mass.,
August 8, 1935.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals for the execution of the public works and buildings for the sale to the public of the reports of decisions of the Supreme Judicial Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, during a term of the Supreme Court, reported and published during the first day of September, 1935, beginning with the volume containing the decisions in one hundred and eighty-nine, and also for the printing and sale to the public of the advance sheets of opinions of said court, during the above named term, and the next succeeding three years, will be received by the Commonwealth at the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, Room 272, State House, Boston, Mass., until 12 o'clock noon, on August 26, 1935, at which time all bids will be opened and read by the authority associated the Chapter 7 of the General Laws of the Commonwealth. All proposals must be made upon the form prepared by the Commonwealth, and copies of the same may be obtained on application at the office of the secretary of the commonwealth. All bids must be signed by the bidder with his full name and address and must be inclosed in sealed envelopes endorsed "Bids for Supreme Court Reports and Advance Sheets." Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for the sum of $500, payable to the order of the Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. All such checks, except that of the successful bidder, will be returned on demand to the persons making the same within three days after the contract is awarded. Bonds or securities satisfactory to said officers in the amount of $10,000 for the contract on the Massachusetts Reports and bonds or securities satisfactory to said officers in the amount of $10,000 on the contract for the advance sheets shall be given or deposited by the party or parties to whom the contracts may be awarded to secure their faithful performance. No contract for the Massachusetts Reports must be signed and the bonds or securities furnished within ten days after the date of notification by said officers of the acceptance of the proposals and in case of failure of the bidder after such notification to sign the contract and to furnish said bond or securities, the proposal will be considered as abandoned and the certified check accompanying the proposal shall be forfeited to the Commonwealth. The said officers reserve the right to reject any and all bids and to award the contract to such bidder or bidders as in their judgment the interest of the Commonwealth may require.

PAUL A. DEVER,
Attorney General.
FREDERIC W. COOK,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Young Ladies, Dress Like This

Simplicity Is Beauty

"THREE AMERICAN GIRLS DRESSED AS THEY SHOULD BE DRESSED

This picture of American girls, dressed for the street in the fashion of 1935, is reproduced by permission from GOOD HOUSEKEEPING magazine, and is recommended to all young American girls.

These dresses represent common sense, the faces and the figures picture health, and sound true, youthful happiness. These three faces, these three simple dresses, the sturdy, girlish figures should wipe out a good deal of the nonsense talked about the modern American girl.

Millions of American girls and women read GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, which is far and away the most influential and successful woman's magazine. Such girls as these, cheerful, intelligent, guarantee the quality of the future generations and make us forget the occasional foolishness of today.

Red Paint People

Relics In Maine

At The Forks in Maine, one one of the principal auto routes to Quebec, a structure of split stone with two crypts has been uncovered.

Some think the chambers are relics of the Red Paint People, who roamed the Pine Tree State before the appearance of the Abenaki Indians.

This is believed by students of the past to have been about five thousand years ago.

Maybe the crypts were being constructed at about the time the Egyptian Pharaohs were piecing together the Pyramids.

Maine's Summer tourist attractions appear inexhaustible.

Here's a chance for interesting study for college professors and others almost at their front doors—an auto can easily take you to The Forks in PART of a day.

And you'll be passing through a country wonderfully blessed by its Maker.

Beavers Can Tell

Weather Forecasters

Residents of Hudson, New Hampshire, have a unique weather forecasting system at their disposal.

It is supplied by John T. Benson, former curator of Franklin Park Zoo, who combines the talents of his wild animal farm with modern science.

When the canny beavers lower their dams he says it means rain and they fear their homes will be flooded.

If the outlook is for fair weather they raise the height of the dams to insure a water supply.

The result of their findings Mr. Benson flashes in the sky with a huge searchlight early at night.

It is enough to make one wonder whether man has triumphed over nature or simply has failed to learn enough about it.

An Unfair Blow

Mrs. Rogers' Warning

Those who give heed to the satirical sallies about the mere half-a-hundred "thriftiest," directed at opponents of new tax plans, might well consider the protest of Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers.

The representative from Lowell points out that the "Soak the Successful" bill calls for payment of inheritance taxes on ALL insurance.

To millions of widows and helpless dependents it means a shrunken inheritance as well as delay following the death of the policy holder.

Cardinal Honored

By France

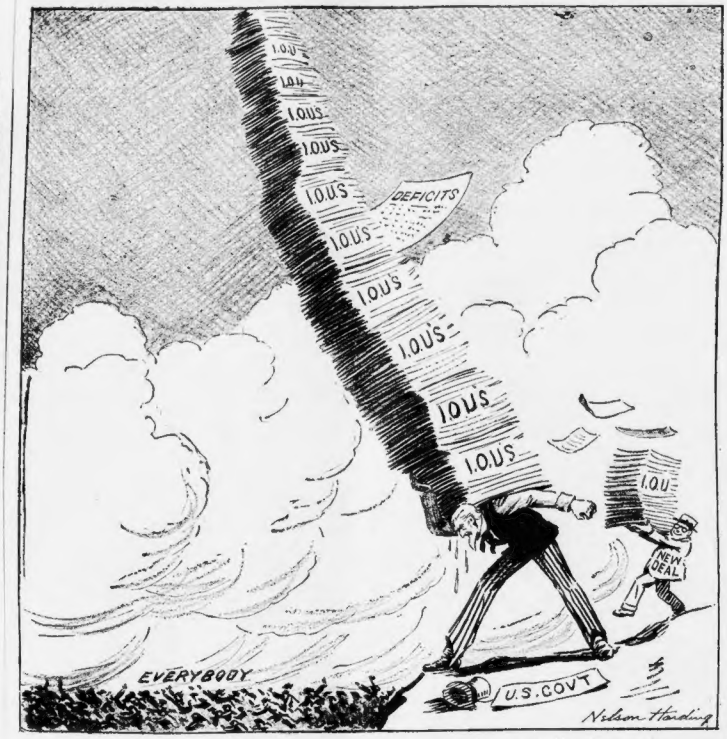
Cardinal O'Connell will be accorded a rare tribute Monday when Andre de Laboulaye, French Ambassador, visits Boston to hand him the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor.

This is the highest decoration France can bestow.

The Cardinal's able work in behalf of the French-speaking members of his faith, both in the Portland diocese and in the Boston archdiocese, may well have won him this newest tribute.

Our Own Leaning Tower

By Nelson Hardi



How long can Uncle Sam support
That tall and leaning tower?
To keep it balanced on his back,
Appears beyond his power.

How long can even his great strength
Prevent the tower's fall,
And keep the whole top-heavy mass
From crushing on us all?

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 9 — Thoughts while strolling: Grand name for a water front reporter—Lee Shipley. Steve Hannagan in uniform could pass for a dandy young Irish cop. Twos: Percy Waxman in one a press agent, one an editor. Ideal Gordons, playwright and painter. Anyway few can look so wistful as Peggy Fears. Dreariest of fears: Manhattan on a summer Sunday afternoon. Cyclonic redheads—Robert Moses and Herbert Swope. I recall but three Oscars in the American stage—Pigmain, Saw and Eagle. Wonder if Crosby Gaige knows Hawsbee Page? Book alikes: Frank Fay and Hardie Albright. And Bob Garland and Harry Richman talk alike. Dignified moniker: Winthrop Aldrich. John Charles Thomas has the biggest chest of the singers. And the littlest ears. Babbling brook line from the radio column: Ted Fio Rito playing Rio Rita.

O. O. McIntyre

Memory: Wrapping the favorite agate in bacon-rind to take out the half-moons. Those whitetaired messenger "boys" who mumble. The Belasco theater sign the building glooms. You have to look twice to realize Baron Wrangel is not Clifton Webb. Where you see Billy De Beck you usually see Gene Sarazan.

What's become of the bloods who used both nails and smoked monogrammed cigarettes? The new fictioneer Rex Stout, in all the magazines, began to click at 50. Beatrice Lillie's onion-slick bob. Phyllis Seaman's Cupid's bow lips. Ideal pop-the-question spot: A stage Coach Inn verandah at sundown.

Thingumbobs: Sir Forbes Robertson was moon-eyed . . . Rebecca West thought Washington was "funny" . . . Mrs. H. L. Mencken was on the last chapter of a book when she passed away . . . Carolyn Wells celebrates finishing of a novel with two cocktails in quick succession . . . Yipe!

Clemence Dane writes to people she cares nothing about on pink paper and to her friends on deep blue paper . . . The Somoan Islands are to have a modern hotel called The Robert Louis Stevenson . . .

Will Cuppy averages reading ten mystery novels a week . . . The Paris Ritz, for the first time in three years, has all floors open and a full staff . . . Mrs. Roy Howard wears a ring with a large blood-stone on the first finger of her right hand.

Madison Square bencher to a fellow sitter:

"You know the only time my heart aches me?" A negative shake. "When I go out and get drunk; that's the only time my heart aches me."

On a crowded subway bound for a Fulton street newspaper office one morning I had a sickening close-up of a pickpocket at work. Wedged in the swaying mass, it so happened my gaze fell on a serpentine hand running lightning-like over the clothes of a newspaper reader next to me.

Like the dart of a cobra, the hand went into a hip-pocket and brought out a purse and in a flash transferred it to someone I could not see.

What I shall never forget was the casual, detached expression of the dip, doubtless keyed to nerve snapping tautness. The entire incident flickered like a movie episode and vanished.

But most fascinating of the light-fingered genius to my notion is an ocean greyhound, the card shark of the liners. Invariably he has savoir faire, is a plushy dresser and often adept at several languages.

He isn't in his calling but a few months until he is tagged by ship officers who warn with posters: "Professional Gambler Aboard." Thus he must pit wits against almost overwhelming odds, size up his victims within 48 hours after sailing, jockey them into crooked games and take his chances.

Few criminals teeter so perilously on the dangerous edge or are so constantly at bay. Yet seldom are they caught. Many now silver-haired have been taking chances for 25 years. And still go up the gangplanks.

Reverie in E. flat: I was day dreaming this morning on Paris and The Primrose Tearoom, mark the name, in reu de Bac. A tearoom, conducted by two English old maids with spit curls and a screaming parrot, which has the choicest and most select vintage vines in France.

Such are the incongruities that make every visitor long for Paree despite her hypocrisies, insults and sou squeezing.

Isn't It So?

Truth does not depend on the conclusions of men.

Not every one can be great in the world, but every one can be great in character.

Our capacity for satisfaction depends not on the splendor of our conquests but on ourselves.

Every man is of importance to himself.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

WHAT PRICE OUR NOTION OF "LOVE"?

This thing we call "love"—we preach sermons about it, write poems eulogizing it, pass laws to protect it, and loudly proclaim that it is the greatest and holiest thing in human life.

But I wonder if we've actually improved our conception of love a particle since the first savages clawed, bit and killed "for love's sweet sake," in the depths of the primeval jungle.

Elsie Robinson

They sentence Margaret Waley recently to serve twenty years in a Federal penitentiary for helping her husband to kidnap little George Weyerhaeuser of Tacoma. Margaret is only 19 years of age.

LIFE BEHIND BARS

It is not a pleasant thing to turn one's back on life and laughter at 19 and spend one's youth behind bars—nor a comforting thing to have brought shame and heartbreak on the family one loves. Yet Margaret Waley did not regret that sentence.

To the contrary, she desired it—said it made her "feel nearer" to her husband, who is serving his time in Alcatraz.

"How I love that man!"—that was Margaret Waley's only remark when they brought her in —the only reason she gave for becoming involved in a most hideous and inhuman crime.

She "loved" a coward, a weakling, a man whom she knew to be an ex-con. And that "love", in her mind, justified anything she did.

For that she kept silent while a helpless baby was horribly abused and a frantic mother and father suffered unspeakable agony.

IN WOMEN'S WARD

Daily the newspapers record fresh exhibitions of atrocities committed in the name of "love."

Homes turned into hell because of the poisonous possessiveness of some small-minded woman, the sulky jealousy of some selfish man. Men and women abandoning themselves to every vicious impulse of hate and suspicion—lying, bullying, cheating, meddling, torturing—"because of love." Or doing even more fiendish things—

I am thinking of a visit I once paid to the women's ward at San Quentin. An amazing experience. Not one woman there even remotely resembled our conception of a "woman criminal." Quietly demure, most of them, dainty in spite of their ugly uniforms—and as full of friendly chat as any fireside circle.

Yet those women had committed atrocities which would have made any male gorilla blanch with horror, and every act, be it forgery, blackmailing, robbery, dope peddling, white slavery, or the most awful cases of mutilation and murder, had been done for "love!"

Always there was a man in it, some hero for whose adored sake any vileness was considered justified.

And here's the strange part of it. Take any hundred citizens, and though they would unanimously condemn those acts in public, it's a safe wager that 90 per cent of them would sympathize and applaud in private.

For that's how most of us privately feel—that "anything's fair in love!"

IS IT HERE?

"Isn't it wonderful," breathed a sentimental friend, to whom I had described the San Quentin incident, "to think that women are like that—willing to make any sacrifice, accept any punishment for their men?"

The woman who uttered this was seemingly intelligent. She read fine books, belonged to a good club, attended the best of plays and lectures.

Yet she honestly believed that it was romantically brave and beautiful for a woman to "kill in defense of her home."

And she even defended the woman who allowed herself to be beaten by a man, or sold herself on the street at his command!

Love! But is that love? Or is it a vile and shameful surrender to all that is darkest in our natures? And what chance has civilization so long as we cling to such savage notions? Can there be anything holy in marriage which is built on such ideas and relationships?

Or anything honorable in courts which sustain those notions when brought before the bar?

IN SHORT, WHAT PRICE SUCH LOVE? AND WHAT, IF ANYTHING, WOULD YOU—OR YOU—OR YOU DO ABOUT IT?

Words of Wise

Lying is a certain mark of cowardice.—Mrs. R. Southern.

Few men can afford to be angry.—Edmund Burke.

Time makes much grief wane.—Adelaide Proctor.

Italy Faces Fierce Foe

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Within a few weeks—certainly by the first of October—we will be reading war news from Abyssinia — Ethiopia, to give it its classical and ancient name. Mussolini's legions will be driving forward with all the modern machinery of war against the medieval warriors of the king of kings, the Emperor Haile Selassie. The outcome of this war of territorial conquest upon which the modern Caesar has embarked is on the knees of the gods.

Edwin C. Hill

ODDS FAVOR ITALY

Although climate, trackless terrain, mountain, jungle and swamp are against the European invaders, it is probable that in the end, though at a great cost, Italy will subjugate the last native state left in all dark Africa.

It will not be the first time that Ethiopia has been invaded by a European army. Back in 1867 Emperor Theodore mistreated English envoys. England, with the swift dispatch which characterized John Bull in those days, sent an army into the country to enforce the release of the captive plenipotentiary.

Sir Robert Napier, commanding a force of 32,000 and following in the footsteps of the Egyptian King Ptolomy, struck into Ethiopia, marched over 400 miles of mountainous and little-known country, inhabited by savage tribes, won victory after victory, stormed and took the chief city, Magdala, and accomplished a subjugation so humiliating that the Emperor Theodore committed suicide.

The wonder is that England did not hold on to Ethiopia once she had conquered the land, but Disraeli, Lord Beaconsfield, had so many irons in the fire on at least three continents that Ethiopia may have seemed hardly worth the cost of complete pacification and colonization.

ENGLAND WITHDREW

At all events, England withdrew, and until the disastrous Italian adventure which culminated in 1896 on the battlefield of Adowa, when an Italian army of 14,000 was overwhelmed by Menelik's 90,000, Ethiopia was unbothered by European aggressors.

It remains today one of the most interesting corners of the earth. The name Ethiopia is Greek. It means "The Land of the Scorched Faces."

It is a very old land. Herodotus writes about it. It is a land of mixed races. There is old Egyptian blood there. There is Arab blood and, of course, along with a strong negroid mixture, a definite Semitic strain.

The mixture of races is such, indeed, that the very name Abyssinia traces back to the Arabic word "Habesch" which signifies mixture or confusion, applied to this country by the Arabs on account of the mixed character of the people.

The Portuguese Latinized the Arabic word to "Abassines"; hence, the present name.

A RICH REGION

It is unquestionably one of the richest regions of all Africa. No wonder Mussolini covets it for his overcrowded, prolific Italy.

Almost everything that grows and is useful to man thrives in this ancient land. Most of the domestic animals of Europe are found there.

Its plains and jungles are alive with big game. Crocodiles and hippopotami in the waters; lions, panthers, leopards, buffalo, elephants and rhinoceroses on the plains.

The predominant race is the Galla, a fierce and turbulent tribe which is the backbone of the military force.

They are big men, well built, of a brown complexion with regular features and small, deeply-sunk, very bright eyes and long black hair. In manners the Ethiopians are rude and barbarous.

The nobles, incessantly engaged in feudal warfare and accustomed to bloodshed, have very little regard for human life.

In war they seldom kill their prisoners. They make slaves of them. One of the black marks against Ethiopia today is the prevalence of human slavery. There are said to be at least two million slaves in a population of perhaps six millions.

Although Great Britain vainly attempted to go to the rescue of Abyssinia when Mussolini flashed the sword of Caesar, Britain, nevertheless, has contained bitterly against slave raids made by the Ethiopians into the British colony of Kenya.

The monarchy is one of the most ancient in the world. By tradition it traces back to the son of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, Menelik the First.

But the real power in the land is held by a score or more of great tribal chiefs, each a master of a considerable territory and of thousands of followers.

'Dear Govt.'

Hon. James A. Farley
Democratic Party
Wash., D. C.

AS Honorable Secretary of the Volunteer Govt. Experts, I hereby want to protest on the food that this nation's Leading Democrats is being fed in the County Jails.

How the Volunteer Experts come to find out about Jail Food is as follows:

We set down for our regular Weekly Meeting in the park yesterday to solve a few U. S. Problems, and our President says:

"The Members have now come to Order, but who is making that Loud Noise?"

It turned out that the loud noise came from a Non-Member, he was laying on a bench nearby, and snoreing, so our Sargent-of-Arms got over & poked him.

"Will you please lay off of snoreing," he says, "so as us Loyal Democrats can talk?"

"No, I won't," says this man on the bench, "because I am a Republican, and this here is a Public Park. The U. S. Constitution stands for Free Speach, & any man can snore as loud as he wants to, providing he don't overthrow the Govt by violence."

"Oh, is that so?" says our President, "then us Raw Dealers will change the Constitution so that a Tory like you can't snore without permission from Mr. Roosevelt. We are going to have an Anti-Constitution plank in our 1936 Platform."

The Non-Member got mad, he says:

"If you Bums fiddle with our U. S. Constitution you won't need no Platform in 1936, the American People will build you a Platform with a trap door and a rope for your neck."

That was the last straw, Mr. Farley, our President pointed his finger & says:

"Honorable Sargent-of-Arms, throw that man out of this meeting."

Well, Mr. Farley, this man stood up to an altitude of about 6 foot 4, and he give our poor Sargent-of-Arms a sock on the jaw. The Vice-Pres. and Treasurer piled in to help our Sargent-of-Arms, and fists began to fly in all directions.

Our President yelled at me, he says:

"This is a time for you to be writing the Minutes, come & grab aholt of this man's leg!"

I reach out to grab the leg, but just then a Whissle went off in my ear. I looked at the Whissle and seen a Policeman on the corner of 12 Thurs. and there was lots of Whissles with Policemen on them, & the next thing you knew, the Volunteer Govt. Experts was meeting in the Patrol Waggon.

We have just ate our 1st meal in the County Jail, and have drew up the following Resolution:

WHEREAS, we are now assembled in this County Jail, and

WHEREAS, the food don't agree with our Constitution, be it Resolved, that we are stronger than ever for Relief, and we will support Mr. Roosevelt just as long as he is supporting us.

No Pictures of Lamb Chops

By Edgar A. Guest

"No more cameras while I'm eating."—Mayor La Guardia of New York.

Says the mayor of New York to the camera boys:
"It isn't the flash of the bulb or the noise,
Or the poising at times for your shots I object to.
Your mayor must be pictured,
and oft I expect to.
You may take me while praying
Or corner stone laying,
Or unto some bigwig extending a greeting;
You may slop up and mug me
While chorus girls hug me,
But never again must you shoot
While I'm eating.

"Never more shall I stand for the click and the flash
Of your photograph trade while
I'm working on hash.
And never again in this hazardous life
Shall you catch me again with the peas on my knife.
Take me laughing or weeping
Or restfully sleeping.
Sneak up at dawn and get me when I waken.
Take me riding or swimming
Or fingernails trimming,
But me and my lamb chops must never be taken.

"For publicity purposes pictures are needful,
But, boys, there's a limit! I warn you be heedful!
You may take me at times with some strange-looking group,
But never again while I'm taking in soup.
You may take silk-hatted
And coattailed and spatted,
While wielding a gavel or pressing a button;
Take me going or coming,
In high life or slumming,
But never again while I'm working on mutton.'
